ENDORSEMENT OF IMPROVEMENTS AUTHORIZED

Advancement Association Goes on Record for Bond Election August 29

The East Glendale Advancement Association yesterday endorsed the municipal bond election to be held August 29 for the expenditure of $25,000 for a public comfort station, $35,000 for the pavement of streets adjacent to school houses and $40,000 for the construction of an annex to the city hall.

The weekly meeting of this association was well attended. It was held as usual in the Broadway Inn, 637 East Broadway. About sixty active citizens of the east side were present and several representatives from other sections of the city.

"I am glad to be a member of an organization like this that seems to be made up of live wires," asserted Judge F. H. Lowe, who outlined briefly the plans for the city hall annex. "I think it is a matter of congratulation to the whole community that you people have an organization like this devoted to the upbuilding of Glendale."

Efficiency Impaired.

According to Judge Lowe, accommodations for the city administration have not kept pace with Glendale's record as the fastest growing city in America and, as a result, the efficiency of many municipal employes is greatly impaired for lack of working space.

"The court at the present time is being held in the council room," he asserted, calling attention to the need for a new court room. "In the near future it will be essential for the council to hold daily meetings and hold them in the day time."

Information was requested as to why a bond election should be necessary to improve the streets adjacent to school property.

Councilman C. E. Kimlin reported that the grammar school board did not have the funds and that an assessment could not be levied against school property unless the board was willing to pay it. He reminded those present that it was a question of either voting bonds to pay for the work or leaving the streets in their present condition which, he admitted, are disgraceful in some cases.

Railway Bonus Discussed.

Judge F. H. Lowe commented upon the fact that the assessed

G. O. Piercey Nears Close of Vacation

George O. Piercey, efficient bookkeeper for The Glendale Evening News, who went into the wilds near Laguna Beach on a two weeks' vacation, accompanied by his wife and their daughter, will return to civilization the middle of next week, friends learned today. Mr. Piercey captured a nice coat of tan—among other things. He writes that the fish are biting—one bit his big toe. Also, he informs whoever may care that he has gained in weight at least a pennyweight. As his vacation period draws to a close he writes that he's anxious to return to the book figures at the Evening News office and forget the figures seen on the sands. Also, he says he will be glad to get home and rest up from his vacation.

Glendale Visitors Guests at Picnic

A group of Glendale people gathered at Echo park Thursday afternoon to enjoy a picnic in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Willisford, who are spending the summer in Glendale. Mr. Willisford was formerly pastor of the Congregational church of this city and Mrs. Willisford was a prominent member of many local organizations, and at the time of her departure from Glendale was president of the Tuesday Afternoon club. Little Joy Willisford was also a happy member of the picnic party, all of whom were members of the Congregational church and old friends of Dr. and Mrs. Willisford.

Public Pay Phone Put In Postoffice

The telephone booth, which, it was announced several days ago, would be put in the Glendale postoffice, was installed there this morning. Since the local postoffice is now open twenty-four hours each day, the telephone will be available for use at all times by patrons of the office.

KLAN CASE HALTED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11. — A delay of ninety days or a mistrial of the Ku Klux Klan case loomed today as the result of the collapse of Nathan A. Baker, former kleagle of the klan and admitted leader of the Inglewood raiders. Baker, who fainted in the courtroom late yesterday, is in a condition which will not permit him to attend court for at least ninety days, his physician informed Superior Judge Houser.

Glendale Verdugo Name Selected for City's New Park

Glendale Verdugo Park—that's the "list of one" selected by the civics committee of the Chamber of Commerce from the 175 or so names suggested for Glendale's new municipal park, and submitted and recommended for final action by the city council. The council is meditating on the recommendation and will announce final decision at an early date.

With regard to the choice of Glendale Verdugo members of the civics committee state a majority of the suggestions received involved all or part of the significent names Glendale Verdugo. For instance, Glendugo, Verdglen, Verdugo, Verdugo Hills, Glen Verdu, Verdugo, Verdugo Glen.

All indicating that while individual ideas varied there existed a common sentiment that the name chosen for the park should indicate its location in Glendale and should also be of historical significance.

Glendale Verdugo Park is, therefore, a happy combination, designating the location of the park in Glendale and paying lasting tribute to the Verdugo family and the part they took in the early history of this part of California, the committee declares.

Just what the action of the council will be on the recommendation of the civics committee is not known, nor when announcement will be made of what that decision is. However, one News reader has suggested that the park be officially named as part of the big community celebration August 16 in the new park.

BOND ISSUE TO PURCHASE HIGH SCHOOL SITE IN NORTHWEST; TO SPEND REMAINDER ON EAST SIDE

Majority at Mass Meeting Votes to Have Two Propositions Tied Together In Spite Of Vigorous Protests

Glendale is to have another bond election for high school purposes.

A mass meeting last night in the high school auditorium authorized the high school board of trustees to call a bond election for $350,000, part of which is to be used for the purchase of a site in the northwest section of the city and the balance of which is to be used for the completion of the new high school plant.

The use of the present high school plant and the advisability of establishing a junior high school was referred to a conference to meet as soon as possible.

The formal motion, authorizing the bond election, was worded as follows:

"That the mass meeting instruct the high school trustees to call a bond election to vote on bonds to the amount of $350,000. This bond issue, if voted, to be used as follows:

"First, that a site in the northwest section of Glendale be purchased.

"Second, that as much of the money left as necessary be used to complete the proposed high school plant on Verdugo Road.

"Furthermore (a), that it be the sense of the meeting that the high school trustees inaugurate a system of junior high schools as soon as the present high school plant is available for use for that purpose; (b) that a preferential ballot be presented for the voters at the time of bond election with all the sites which have been offered to the trustees with proper options listed thereon with the understanding that the site receiving the majority of votes be the one purchased by the trustees."

Consolidation Move

Richardson D. White, superintendent of the elementary school system, introduced the following motion which was approved without much discussion:

"I move that the high school board be instructed to call a conference consisting of one member from the board of trustees of Monte Vista, Tujunga, La Crescenta and Eagle Rock districts, all the members of the Glendale City Board of Education and the high school board of trustees to consider the best method of unifying our present school systems and for the formation of one junior high school system for these several districts.

"Each of the boards of trustees in Monte Vista, Tujunga, La Crescenta and Eagle Rock shall select its own conference member from among its members and the conference as a whole shall select its own chairman.

"The conference shall present its report at a mass meeting to be called at some future time."

James M. Rhoades, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, was nominated as chairman of the evening by Judge F. H. Lowe. This nomination was endorsed by Capt. W. B. Kelly of 106 West Colorado street.

"I don't believe in changing horses in the middle of a stream," remarked Alex Mitchell of 1801 Kenneth road, nominating Dr. Jessie Russell.

Presiding Officials

Both Dr. Russell and Mr. Rhoades arose to their feet to decline the nomination, but it was conceded that Mr. Rhoades had the floor first. After thanking those present for the honor, Dr. Russell admitted that this was one time that she had been "beaten to it" by a man.

"In cases of this kind it is generally customary to have a vice-chairman," declared Mr. Kelly. "I nominate Mr. Sherer."

After his election, J. C. Sherer of 717 South Verdugo road, remarked that he had accepted the nomination without objection because he anticipated "that it would be a job in which he would have nothing to do."

Chairman Russell agreed with this remark, but said that she was glad to have the distinction of his company in front of the audience just the same.

Miss Kate Auwerter of 306 East Lomita acted as official stenographer.

Architect John C. Austin was called upon for a brief statement. He called attention to the fact that most communities in southern California are facing the problem of how to accommodate their school children. He predicted that the $17,000,000 school build-

ROTARIANS CONFER ON CIVIC AFFAIRS

Glendale Club Discusses Many Subjects at Their Weekly Luncheon

A multiplicity of civic affairs came before the Glendale Rotary club at its weekly luncheon meeting yesterday noon with President Roy L. Kent home from a vacation trip. The school bonds, depot site and other subjects were considered and action initiated after Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools, urged that something be done.

It was announced that the first Thursday noon in September would see the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs dining together.

LETTER CARRIERS ENJOY PROGRAM

Glendale Branch Members Commended for Success of Organization

Glendale letter carriers were commended for the success of their recently organized branch when executives of the Los Angeles branch addressed the local members in K. P. hall last night.

Alfred Tishler, president of the Angel City branch, and Thomas Piggot, vice president, declared that the Glendale organization is becoming favorably known all through California for its activities. Mr. Piggott urged that new members be obtained by the branch just as soon as they had been named substitute carriers. "Get them interested early in the work of your branch," he advised.

Joe Fallon, manager of the Los Angeles letter carriers' band, thanked the Glendale members who come to Los Angeles to play with the Angel City musical organization. Bill Riley, chairman of the publicity committee, discussed the raising of funds to send delegates to the state convention at Eureka, September 3, 4 and 5. Bill Gamble and Al C. Holcomb will represent Glendale at the annual meeting. Henry Meyers, soloist in the Los Angeles band, was present at last night's meeting.

An invitation was extended to Los Angeles branch members to attend other Glendale meetings. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Letter Carriers' association provided refreshments for the occasion. Radio music, furnished through courtesy of the Smith Electrical company added zest to the program.

Name For West Side Park Being Sought

An euphonious name for the west side park would be very appropriate in the opinion of Dr. Jessie Russell of 208 South Brand boulevard, chairman of the civics committee of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. She expressed the opinion this morning that a name could be selected which would be much more suitable than "The Patterson Avenue Park."

EXPLOSION ON WHITE STAR SHIP; SEVERAL KILLED

ON BOARD STEAMER ADRIATIC AT SEA, BY WIRELESS, Aug. 11.—A terrific explosion was followed by fire in hold Number 3 of this famous old White Star liner shortly after midnight. Captain David, not knowing the seriousness of the consequences, sent out a wireless call, saying that he might need assistance. It was announced by the ship's master that two men, both employes in the fire room, had been killed Another is missing. All the passengers are safe. After slowing the vessel down to ascertain the damage, Captain David ordered full speed ahead. In the meantime stewards and other officers of the ship assured passengers that there was no danger. The ship was about 300 miles off the American coast when the explosion took place. There are between 600 and 700 passengers on board. Captain David immediately began an investigation. The American liner George Washington reported by wireless that she was coming to the assistance of the Adriatic but it was believed no help would be needed. After getting assurance of safety from the officers the passengers were calm.

RAIL UNION HEADS DISCUSS SYMPATHETIC STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—While President Harding met with his cabinet at the White House today to consider further government action in the grave industrial situation, representatives of the sixteen standard railroad unions went into session eight city blocks away to formulate a policy of sympathetic action that will make the railroad strike more effective. These developments were in prospect as the two meetings got under way this morning: The striking railway shopmen will reject the president's proposition of Monday for the men to return to work pending a decision on the seniority question by the railroad labor board; other railroad unions, including the four powerful brotherhoods, will agree upon a policy of sympathetic action to support the strikers without authorizing a general strike; this will be accomplished by authorization of "individual" or "voluntary" strikes by members of affiliated unions whenever and wherever in the judgment of the workers their employment or working conditions are such as to be prejudicial to life or limb; union men will be permitted to decide for themselves whether they want to stand on the job—the result of which is expected to be a slow, progressive walkout on the roads by all classes of railroad labor.

RAIL TIE-UP LOOMS NOW IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—Paralysis of railroad transportation in southern California loomed as a real possibility today when crews of the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific railroads were reported contemplating similar action to that of the Santa Fe crews by refusing to move guarded trains. The brotherhood decision, affecting engineers, conductors, firemen and trainmen, was followed almost immediately by cessation of Santa Fe trains at Barstow and Needles, Cal., and Seligman, Ariz. Information was flashed to railroad executives that men on the Southern Pacific, Western Pacific and other lines were considering similar action and it became apparent immediately that Los Angeles was likely to be entirely cut off from rail communication within twenty-four hours. The brotherhoods' refusal to move trains because of the presence of armed guards in the yards and on the cars may be backed up, it was reported, by the transportation men in other districts, who claim that equipment of trains is in poor condition as the result of the maintenance of way and shopmen's strike. Brotherhood members declared that no more Santa Fe trains will move through Barstow until further orders are received from the union. Passenger trains Numbers 1 and 8, delayed at Needles, and the California Limited, were reported backing into Barstow from Newberry, because water pumpers there are out on strike. I. L. Hibbard, general coast manager for the Santa Fe, said today that a conference would be held later in the day to determine how passengers at points where trains have been halted would be taken care of.

JOHN SHAY TELLS ABOUT GLENDALE 30 YEARS AGO

Unbroken Land Where City Now Stands; Social Life; Cottage As Relic

By JOHN C. SHAY

After an absence of thirty years, and on returning to the Glendale of today, the writer can do naught but compare himself to Rip Van Winkle—with this exception: dear old Rip slept for twenty years. In the case of your humble servant the snooze has been prolonged to thirty years.

With thrilling admiration for your beautiful, modern Glendale, the writer stood in its center only a few days ago and recalled, how on many occasions he had roamed over the unbroken land, covered with live oak brush, wild shrubbery, and an occasional corn or melon patch to mark the only advancement of the land on which your beautiful city now stands.

The business center of Glendale, thirty years ago, was located at the southwest corner of Glendale avenue and Nelson street, and consisted of a general merchandise store. This store served as headquarters for the lumber yard, postoffice and terminal point for the steam dummy line which made morning and evening trips to and from Los Angeles.

Aside from the horse-drawn vehicle, this dummy line was the only means of transportation in those days. The rolling stock of that line consisted of a passenger coach and a number of freight cars.

Train Is Big Event

The most prominent residents of Glendale at that time were engaged in business or professional callings in Los Angeles, and made their daily round trips by way of the dummy line. The arrival and departue of the train was the event of the day.

The store and lumber yard were owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Ayers. Their daughter, Esther, served as the appointed P. M. A blacksmith shop on a rear lot, a livery stable a few blocks south on Glendale avenue—where it still stands, and what is now known as a sanitarium, was, at that time conducted as a young woman's seminary. The class room of this served as a chapel for services of the Episcopal church.

The Presbyterian church was located a few blocks east of the Isitts and they entertained Mrs. Lowry a few weeks ago before she went to Hollywood to be the guest of her daughter.

Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock on a table decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white. African marigolds formed the centerpiece, while handpainted placecards in yellow and white marked places for Mesdames Marchant, Lowry, John Crampton, Charles Hallett, Samuel Ayers, C. Gates, Carmack, Chester Kling, C. Miller, Garnsey, McNamara, A. Engleman, John Meyers and the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Isitts and the Marchants and Mrs. Lowry plan to leave tomorrow morning for a motor trip to San Diego, where they will stay for four or five days sightseeing.

Sings Way to Police Station, Then Theatre

From 9 o'clock yesterday morning until early afternoon residents of various parts of the city were surprised at hearing the sweet tones of a rich baritone voice singing numerous songs in the street.

James Gordon, not a professional tramp, but a miner, trying to earn a few dollars, was the serenader. On complaint of householders he was taken to the police station where Sergeant Timmons heard his story.

It was suggested that he see the theatre managers and Gordon went to Ralph Allan, manager of the T. D. and L., who, after a try out, gave him employment for several days.

And everybody is happy.

URGE GOLDEN RULE IF MAIL WRONGLY DELIVERED

Assistant Postmaster Asks Prompt Return of All Misdelivered Letters

"When mail is wrongly delivered to you, return it promptly to the postoffice and help us in giving you and everyone else the service we try to maintain," says Assistant Postmaster George Hallett.

The number of persons who will hold mail intended for someone else is surprising, says Mr. Hallett. Letters intended for persons of a similar name are sometimes misdelivered. Many persons who receive this mail will hold it for a week or even a month before returning it to the postoffice. When it is finally delivered to the person for whom it is intended, he is usually much annoyed at the delay.

It's Inconvenient.

The delay in returning wrongly delivered mail is probably due more to forgetfulness or thoughtlessness than anything else, in Mr. Hallett's belief. However, it is inconvenient for the person to whom the mail is addressed to keep him waiting for it for days or possibly weeks.

"Put yourself in the position of the one to whom the mail is addressed," advises Mr. Hallett, "and then practice the golden rule."

Review Reels, Comedy and News Complete Screen Program

In "There Are No Villains," Viola Dana's latest picture, which comes to the Glendale theatre today, some thrilling features of what secret service agents have to undergo in their attempts to break up opium smuggling on the west coast are portrayed.

As a federal operator Miss Dana finds that there is considerable conflict between the law of the land and love, and when as a member of the law force she falls in love with one of the supposed smugglers there is a keen battle of wits to prove that her woman's intuition is more reliable than the evidence gathered by the sleuths.

A notable cast supports the Metro star, headed by Gaston Glass, as leading man, Edward Cecil, DeWitt Jennings, Fred Kelsey and Jack Cosgrave. "There Are No Villains" is a Baynard Veiller production.

News, comedy and review reels complete the big film program, while Paul Carson at the organ remains as popular as ever.

Fangman Will Open Cut Rate Tire Shop

Of special interested to the people of Glendale and vicinity, it is declared is the opening of the Cut-Rate Tire store at 212 W. Broadway. It is the intention of this firm to handle a line of high-grade tires and tubes which can be sold to the automobile tire user at wholesale prices. They will feature the Virginian tire, in both cord and fabric. These tires are manufactured by the Virginian Rubber company, which has a reputation for manufacturing tires of the highest grade.

"The tires which we will handle," says A. C. Fangman, "will be only of the highest quality, guaranteed by both the manufacturer and ourselves. We will handle only factory lines which will be sold to the user at wholesale prices, or as near so as is consistent with good business policy. We will not handle any of the so-called "gyp" lines, as there will be room only for tires of the highest quality on our shelves, and every tire sold by us will be backed by our personal guarantee, and our cast iron policy will be to make good absolutely when the tire does not. We will feature the Virginian tire, but at the same time will handle some other brands. In buying and shipping direct from the factory, we will be in a position to give the tire users of Glendale and vicinity a high-grade tire at a price that has never before been attempted.

"We are conveniently located directly opposite the new postoffice."

JURY WOMAN GETS REST AFTER TRIAL

Mrs. Moshier Home From Arrowhead Lake Silent On Obenchain Case

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moshier of 153 Windemere avenue returned Wednesday evening from a week's outing at Little Bear lake, at Lake Arrowhead, as it is now known.

Many improvements are being made at the lake, says Mr. Moshier, who believes that the resort is one of the most beautiful in southern California. So popular has the spot become that a regular city is being built up there, with a water system, sewers, and almost everything imaginable to make it a pleasant place to live.

Mrs. Moshier, who was one of the jurors in the recent Madalynne Obenchain trial, enjoyed the restful outing and is completely recovered from the effects of the long period of deliberation during which the jurors were in "jail."

Mrs. Moshier would make no statement as to her opinion of the case, with the exception that she had no complaint to make of the treatment received during the trial and deliberations. She asserted that both the bailiff and Judge Schenck were considerate, although the jurors' quarters next to the jail were small and inconvenient. They were as good as could be expected under the circumstances," she concluded.

HARTWICK AMONG AVENUES NOW IMPROVED

Street Superintendent Will Change Plans for Paving Of Colorado Boulevard

Claude S. Bramble, Eagle Rock's street superintendent, for the past few days has had part of his street force working on the improvement of North and South Hartwick avenue, and Mt. Helena avenue.

These streets are to be paved with rock and oil. Grading on them is complete and North Hartwick is almost finished, only a small application of rock and oil being necessary for its completion. It is Mr. Bramble's intention to have both of the streets ready for travel by the middle of next week.

Plans have been altered for the paving of the south side of Colorado boulevard between Central and Townsend avenues. It was originally planned to divide the section into four parts and to pave but one of these parts at a time. The section between Highland and Satsuma was plowed up last week, and is near completion now. Oil is to be applied this afternoon.

To Let It Set

However, the section is not to be opened immediately as expected. It was originally in very bad condition, and Mr. Bramble expects to cover it with a layer of fine rock and let it set while the part between Satsuma and Townsend is being plowed up, dried and repaved. The entire section from Highland to Townsend avenue will then be opened at one time, it is understood.

Instead of tearing up the two divisions between Highland and Central avenues at different times, the plan has been changed to work over this whole section at one time. Work there is to start as soon as the other half of the project is completed.

West Kenneth Square Popular With Buyers

An active demand for lots in West Kenneth Square and for business and residential property elsewhere in Glendale is reported by the Charles B. Guthrie real estate company, through Robert Henry, sales manager.

West Kenneth Square, the beautiful foothill tract located in the northwestern part of the city, continues to be a mecca for prospective home builders. The following persons bought lots in this tract during the past week: Sabin G. Buck, M. L. Vishneck, William G. Bode, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Busher, Harry Howe and Glenn Bartlett.

"Glendale's steady growth and prosperity continue to attract investors and home builders who appreciate sound realty values," said Mr. Henry today. "Well-located lots in business districts are in keen demand. There also is a brisk call for residential property throughout the city."

Business conditions have been good during the past week and have proved a contributing factor in increasing real estate transactions, it is announced.

Adeline Woodbury to Dance at Big Picnic

Adeline Woodbury, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mort H. Woodbury of 1111 East Orange Grove avenue, and a talented toe dancer, has consented to give two dances at the community picnic to be held next Wednesday, it was announced this morning.

Little Miss Woodbury will dance at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and at 9 o'clock that evening in the dancing pavilion which has been built in the new park.

Her afternoon dance will be the "Intermezzo Russe." The costume for this performance will be a soft white dress which, draped about her slender form, will give an added airy lightness to the dance.

In the evening, Miss Woodbury will dance the "Flirtation," garbed in a ballet dress of pink satin, covered with glittering spangles.

Ever since she was 2 years old, Miss Adeline has appeared in public as an entertainer. From her second year until about two years ago, when she left Chicago with her parents, she has enjoyed a reputation as a youthful singer of talent.

Since coming to Glendale, Miss Adeline has appeared as a toe dancer in several of the large Los Angeles theatres, and last Christmas time she appeared on a program at the Alexandria hotel in Los Angeles.

She has been toe dancing for about three years, and was on the program of Pearl Keller's recent revue.

Not content with singing and toe dancing, little Miss Woodbury has taken up the study of the saxophone, under the tutorship of Bill Bode. She is progressing remarkably well, according to Mrs. Woodbury, and within a month or two will be able to appear in public as a finished saxophonist.

Frank H. Piling, secretary of the Glendale Merchants' Credit association, which is sponsoring the picnic, is enthusiastic about Miss Woodbury's dancing, and expects that her two entertainments will be popular among the features of the day's program.

DID RODOLPH MISS TRAIN BECAUSE OF SPEED COP?

Eagle Rock Officer Nabbed Valentino's Chauffeur In Awful Rush

Motorcycle Officer Sparks Sprague, who is riding for Harry Williams while the latter is away on his vacation at Big Bear lake, evidently wants to show the folks that the latter isn't the only one who can bring in the big movie stars.

It was shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning when a big imported touring car thundered across the bridge at the eastern outskirts of the city far in excess of the legal speed limit.

Sparks gave chase and finally caught up with it opposite the Country Club. The driver, who gave his name as Arnold R. Sandberg, was in a big rush and he admitted it.

"I am Rodolph Valentino's chauffeur. I am to pick him up in Pasadena, and put him on the 11::30 train for New York," he stated.

"I don't want to see him miss his train, and I will follow you to the railroad station," said Sparks.

Sparks Brings Up Rear

The chauffeur started the car, and Sparks followed close in the rear. The car drew up alongside a big automobile agency in Pasadena, and the driver explained to Sparks that "Rudy" was inside giving orders for a specially designed car. Just about then Valentino himself appeared on the scene.

"Why, I could hardly understand him; he talks with some kind of an accent I couldn't savvy," relates Sparks. "He seemed pretty sore, and claimed he was going to have the lawyer who is handling Burch s case come out to Eagle Rock and square it for him.

"But I just kept right on writing the ticket and handed it to the chauffeur. I looked at my watch and it was after 11:30 then, so I guess 'Rudy' must have missed his train," said Sparks.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. BLANCHE RICKERSON

In the death of Mrs. Blanche Rickerson, aged 28, at the French hospital in Los Angeles last night, Thursday, August 10, 1922, many Glendale people have lost a friend whom they knew only as "Blanche," assistant to Mrs. B. F. Cook for some months in the conduct of Cook's Cafe.

Her husband, Calvin E. Rickerson, is grief-stricken. She is survived also by her father, W. H. Reithmaier of Burbank, and one brother, Don Fayett Reithmaier of Los Angeles. It is stated that she had been ill for six weeks and only two days ago Mr. Rickerson prepared an apartment here for her return to Glendale.

Funeral services are being held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of Ives & Warren, Pasadena. Interment in Mountain View cemetery.

Births

Two girls arrived last night, Thursday, August 10, 1922, at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. They are the babies of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Becker of 425 Pioneer drive and Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hill of 726 Raleigh street.

Joe Furay, Former Resident Here, Dead

Joe Furay, who for a few years made his home in Glendale, is dead. That is what telegraphic advices from San Francisco today say.

Known as king of the bunco men, he died a bunco death. This was the word sent to District Attorney Woolwine of Los Angeles who caused his body to be exhumed for positive identification.

Furay was reported to have dwindled from 200 pounds to 115 pounds while serving a twenty-year sentence in the state penitentiary at Huntsville, Tex. He had swindled J. Frank Norfleet, a Texas officer, and practically every member of his gang has been driven to death by their victim.

On account of his loss of weight Bertillon measurements were resorted to in making positive that no mistake had been made about Furay's death. The body was exhumed yeserday in San Francisco.

France and Britain Still Deadlocked

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The deadlock in the inter-allied conference on German indemnity today brought the Anglo-French accord nearer to a point of collapse than it had ever been before. There was a plenary session of the conference today, but before it met the delegates studied the counter proposals offered by the British cabinet to take the place of the "productive forfeits" program of the French.

It was understood that the reports turned in by the experts were opposed to the French indemnity demands.

While the French cabinet in Paris has approved of the policy of Premier Poincare, it was reported that the French might modify their demands.

AWAIT SON'S ARRIVAL

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Hollingshead, who moved yesterday from 118 N. Orange street to 114½ South Orange street, are awaiting the arrival of their son, Robert Hollingshead, from New Orleans in a few weeks. He is chief of the southern section of the federal pure food department. On account of prosecutions against violators of the pure food act, he finds it impossible to come as soon as he had anticipated.

New Unit Is Opened at Fairview Tract

Hamlin & Hepburn of 203 W. Broadway are about to open the ninth unit of their subdivision at Fairview. About a year ago the first unit of this tract was put on the market, and since that time seven other units, eighty acres in all, have been subdivided and sold. More than 100 homes have been constructed and new ones are starting every day, say company heads.

The popularity of this subdivision is attributed by the company to the fact that it is in a beautiful location in northwest Glendale, practically on the Pacific Electric line, with a magnificent view of mountains and valley, good soil and also to the fact that homesites can be purchased at a reasonable price and advantageous terms.

Just $25 cash is the initial payment required for the purchase of a homesite with easy monthly payments. Almost anybody who really desires to own a home can command this amount of money, and even those who do not wish to build now and who are looking for an investment find here a wonderful opportunity, say owners of the tract. Practically all of the resales of this tract show a profit of several hundred dollars with a very small investment in a short time, they declare.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Sleek and Well Satisfied Admiration for Indians About Attractive Packages Wouldst Kill Our Hiram

By Gil A. Cowan

THERE is something about Glendale that makes you believe its people are satisfied.

Maybe it is because of the large number of sleek and sassy people you meet on the streets.

Or it may be the climate, which is blamed for about anything.

But following the former reasoning, wherever you find roly-poly people you are sure to find a great deal of satisfaction.

And that doesn't infer that thin people are well satisfied, especially in warm weather when they have to pack no avoirdupois around the town on life's little journeys.

Again, we reiterate that fullness of face spells satisfaction and that is what you find here.

Up in the high Sierras the Indians are nice and plump and well satisfied with their lot. They stick around the placid waters of the many lakes all the year round and enjoy themselves immensely.

The Indians are good workers, too, according to their employers. They do as they are told, slowly and surely.

However, the Indians would not recognize this part of California as their ancestral aborigine hunting ground.

No, indeed, these good natured natives of the copper color would be quite confused by the hurry and hustle of Glendale and Los Angeles.

There is something about the white man's ways that the Indian cannot understand, yet both admire each other.

You simply have to stand by and say that the early inhabitants of America had it all over the present generation for sheer enjoyment.

Nobody harped about their short skirts and other lack of costume. When they went bathing they got sunburned all over.

There was no landlord to eject them. No idle chieftain charged admission to fish in the lakes or hunt.

By gollies, they had everything their own way, we'd say.

Every time we attend one of these luncheon sessions of some club or association we cannot help but feel the duty to serve, the pleasure of fellowship and the joy of having faith that all is well with the world.

And at the same moment we cannot help but see mirrored in the mixture of humanity and psychology and education presented that something intangible about the human race which even the Socialists have been unable to overcome in their search for Utopian conditions.

Always there is someone who intentionally, or otherwise, is self-seeking and promoting the interests of his business, his section of his own high thoughts.

Be that as it may, people pay little attention to what is said nowadays unless you put it in an attractive package.

If you are speaking, you must tell stories, be snappy and in the words of a chautauqua manager, stand up to be heard and sit down in order to be appreciated.

The person who keeps the floor—like Bob LaFollette, for instance,—is loved like limburger cheese. In other words, some people can relish it, but most do not.

So it is that The Glendale Evening News is putting its paper in the most attractive way money, time and brains will permit. Something new, something different, something interesting to everyone will be found in its columns.

One thing people admire about Hiram Johnson, the senior senator from California. He can speak convincingly. He believes in what he says and the people believe with him.

If a person could be convicted for having convictions, he would have been quartered, burned and buried long ago. But people like a person who says what he means and means what he says.

Again, when a man is big enough to command the respect and admiration of the President, win the people in practically every election and keep the independent newspapers with him in the battle against financial domination of the senate—well, he has won one of the biggest victories in life.

The reason thousands of dollars are being spent in a vain effort to defeat Hiram Johnson is not Californian in motive. Oh, no! The New York bankers, that insidious group of foreign financiers, have decreed that our Hiram be killed politically.

It is the truth, folks, he has spoiled several parties in which a lot of profit was involved for those who would rehabilitate Europe at the expense of America. Further, he won the favor of one publisher by fighting the greatest monopoly known in the newspaper world—the Associated Press.

When you hear the critics harp on the subject of his defense of the great International News service in its battle against the Associated Press, just remember that the latter was organized as fish and game club in the state of New York, it is reported. In that way it limits its service to members only, establishes restrictions on news and otherwise plays hob with any unenfranchised newspaper publisher!

Now what do you think of that?

BUILDING EXHIBIT PROVIDES NEEDED SERVICE HERE

Free Information at Hand for All Prospective Home Builders

"The Glendale Building Material exhibit is all that its name implies and more," asserted its manager, Mrs. Emma Brainard, yesterday in her office at 111 East Broadway, in the Central building.

"This is a place where anyone interested in building can go and in a half hour get more real information free than one could obtain in a week under the old system of chasing all over town to this place and that," she continued. "Even then it would be impossible to see many of the up-to-date building features which are on exhibition here.

Variety of Exhibits

"The Jewel Electric company has a very beautiful and artistic display of electric light fixtures. Coker & Taylor have an exhibit of stoves, floor heaters, gas radiators, and Ruud instantaneous water heaters. Frank B. Lash, painting contractor, has samples of his workmanship and materials. The Stevens paint store has a display of wall papers, paints and window shades.

Labor-Saving Method

"The Concrete Block and Tile company has erected a wall showing the strength, stability and illustrating the labor-saving method of construction through the use of hollow tile blocks.

"The Inlaid Floor company has taken a space and is now busy installing an exhibit which will give a fine idea of the different hardwood floors. The Glendale Hardware company has a fine and complete line of building hardware which will be found very interesting. A. T. Dobson has a fine exhibit of Petriwood drain boards, floors and mantels."

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray disappears: but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and it gives it an appearance of abundance.—Advertisement.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON FACES AND GRACES

"He said, 'she hath a lovely face,
God in His mercy lend her grace,
The lady of Shalott'."
—Tennyson.

Those lines flashed into my mind the other day in a connection which would certainly have surprised Tennyson.

And, perhaps, annoyed him, since I took the world "grace" in a different sense from the one in which he meant it.

I had been reading the accounts of the experiences of the movie scout who has been looking around the country for girls possessing the qualifications for moving picture work.

What a Star Must Have

She wants a girl who has a combination of pretty face, personal background, carriage, poise, physical proportions and personality. And she finds the pretty face much easier to locate than the other qualifications.

In speaking about the things that bar a girl from picture work, she says: "Girls can't have big feet and get in the movies, nor walk like camels, nor strut along on their heels, nor slough over as thousands of them do, nor smile like a Cheshire cat, nor talk with their faces, nor wiggle their chins."

Now, all these points, except the big feet, are things that a girl can make good on if she will. And yet so few of them do

Over and over again the movie scout discarded a girl who had a pretty face because she had some defect that was entirely unnecessary. One girl was barred by a gawky walk. Another, with a perfect carriage, was discarded when she showed a crooked smile. Still another talked all over her face.

Half of Beauty

There never lived a girl who didn't want to be beautiful. Half of beauty is God-given, but only half. The rest is made up of details like these. And that half any girl can cultivate. How strange that so few of them do. Perhaps it is partly because they think of grace and poise and personality as qualities that appeal to fussy old people, whereas prettiness and style and pep are the real thing. They now have the word of the movie scout for the opposite. And I am sure no one in the world could have more influence than she with the world of flapperdom. If 40 ministers preached 40 sermons to 40,000 people aganist bobbed hair, they couldn't hope to have the influence that the movie scout has when she prints in a daily paper the fact that bobbed hair, unless it happens to be individually becoming, takes away from a girl's charm and reduces her chance of being selected as a movie possibility.

WHEN STREET CARS ARE HALTED

The recent street car and railway strike in Chicago compelled all residents to grasp at every possible means of conveyance that they might be in time at their work places. The fair Chicagoan at the left is fortunate in having a knight of the wheel ready to call for and deliver her every day. The young lady shown at the right attracted so much attention that she got off and walked. Her beau must be given credit for an inventive turn of mind.

Potato Salad—Chop fine two cups of cold cooked potatoes and add the following sauce: Mix together one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, one-eighth teaspoon flour, one-eighth teaspoon each of mustard and cayenne, one teaspoon salt, and then add one cup of boiling milk and a few drops of onion juice. Cook until creamy, then add the chopped potato and stir until the mass is heated through. When cold, serve with hard boiled eggs and French dressing.

Whole Wheat Bread—Make a batter of one and one-half cups water, in which one-half cake of compressed yeast has been dissolved, and three cups of entire wheat flour. Cover and set aside to get very light; then add another one and one-half cups of water, three cups of entire wheat flour, one teaspoon salt and two tablespoons molasses, and knead with one-half extra of flour, into a smooth soft mass. Set to rise again, then make into two loaves, then let rise again to double the size, and bake in a moderate oven about fifty minutes. Remove from pans and cool.

Ginger Snaps — Stir together until thoroughly mixed, one cup of butter, or other cooking fat, one cup of molasses, one cup of brown sugar, three teaspoons ginger, and one-half teaspoon soda dissolved in four tablespoons cold water. Add four cups of flour which has been sifted with one-half teaspoon salt. Roll out an eighth of an inch in thickness and cut with a 2 1-2 inch cutter. Lift with spatula or cake turner and arrange on baking sheet or shallow pan; bake in a moderate oven very careful not to burn. Use as little flour as possible in rolling out. If the dough is thoroughly chilled it can be handled much easier than when it is first mixed.

Scalloped Salmon — Remove skin and bone from one can salman. Butter baking dish and put in first layer of rolled cracker crumbs, then a layer of salmon; season with salt, pepper and small bits of butter and continue until all is used, having layer of cracker crumbs on top. Pour over all two cups of hot milk and bake twenty-five minutes in hot oven.

Pineapple-Cheese Salad—Drain canned pineapple and dry on towel. Place each slice on crisp lettuce leaf. Work cottage cheese (or cream cheese) until smooth, add four tablespoons finely-chopped pecans, season with salt and paprika, shape in small balls and roll in chopped nuts and arrange on pineapple. Serve with French dressing.

Duchess Apple Pie—Line a pie pan with rich pastry and arrange thin slices of Duchess apples around edge of pan, piling them higher in the middle. Mix one-half cup sugar with one teaspoon strained lemon juice and sprinkle over apples. Cut two tablespoons butter in small bits and dot over apples. Wet edge of crust, place the top crust and press edges carefully together. Place in hot oven and bake 40 to 45 minutes, reducing the heat after the first ten minutes.

SPIRITUALITY VS MATERIALITY

I, I, I: I, MYSELF; I
HISTORY OF ME BY ME
CHAPTER XXI
I Am the Baby

I am the Baby.

I am the youngest institution in the world and the oldest.

The Earth is my heritage when I come into being, and when I go I leave it to the next generation of babies.

My mission is to leave the earth a better place than I found it.

With my millions of little brothers and sisters I can do this, if the world does not impose too many handicaps.

Now I need pure milk and fresh air and play.

When I get a little older I shall need good schools in which to learn the lessons of life.

I want to live, laugh, love, work, play.

I want to hear good music, read good books, see beautiful pictures.

I want to build good houses and roads, railroads and cities.

I want to walk in the woods, bathe in the waters and play in the snow.

I am Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.

If you will make my way easy now, I will help you when I grow up.

I am your Hope.

I am the Baby.

—Anonymous.

This little essay on me was composed by someone during the first National Baby Week Campaign and the author is unknown. Isn't that too bad that the author of such a beautiful thing as that should not have the credit for it?

My doctor brought it to my Mama. She thought my family would like to have it and I give it to you for I know you will like to have it also.

These Baby Week Campaigns are now carried out yearly in many cities and towns. During that week there are lectures given by physicians and child experts on all subjects pertaining to infant and child welfare. Examinations and advice are given. These are very wonderful helps to make the community aware how important we babies are.

But what we need in our family, I might almost say, is an anti-importance Baby Week campaign. I am beginning to realize that now that my adoring and adorable family are so terribly upset when anything comes up in my affairs that they can't account for.

For instance, the other day something came up. I spat up a little milk—I do that every once in a while when I get a little greedy—and there was a little bit of blood in it. I knew it couldn't be of any significance for I felt so terribly well.

My beloved Grammie happened to be away and our doctor was attending a Medical Convention and when I spat up that little blood, Migosh! My family! I'll tell you about it next Friday. Au revoir, my friends.

P. S. Of course, I don't have to explain to you that I was joking when I said that we needed an Anti-Importance Baby Week. I'm a terrible joker!

HAVE YOU GREY HAIRS?

To judge from my correspondence all our young people of today are going grey. Whether it is the result of the strenuous life we lead nowadays, whether it is because more than ever we are crowded together in cities, or whether we are all becoming more nervous I cannot say.

Personally, I am inclined to think we are too ambitious and too strenuous. Girls who hold responsible positions in offices, girls who teach school, women in business for themselves—these are the ones who write and say that at the age of 24 or 25 grey hairs are showing, and that by 30 grey hairs predominate.

It is for this reason that the Pilocarpine hair tonic is so much in demand. Pilocarpine is good for the hair. It also acts directly upon the color cells, stimulating them to renewed activity. The formula is as follows:

Pilocarpine Hair Tonic.

Pilocarpine Hydrochlorate, 2 grains
Precipitated Sulphur..30 grains
Creosol (Lilly) .....30 drops
Castor Oil.....10 drops
Alcohol (95 per cent), 4 ounces
Tr Cantharides.....4 drams
Farina Cologne .....4 drams
Rose Water .....8 ounces

Even without the Pilocarpine, the most expensive part of the tonic, this is a good tonic, the cantharides is stimulating and will make the hair thicker and healthier, though it has no action upon the color cells. I'm afraid that in these days of great activity, even the young women should use a tonic. It is an insurance against early grayness, even when actual gray hairs have not appeared.

Nerves have a great deal to do with the health of the hair—and we are all nervous these days, it seems.

Jeanne:—There is nothing in the eyelash tonic that could hurt the eyes. But the eye is always sensitive and will smart if you get even the finest of oils in it. This should only be for an instant, however, and in no way injurious. The directions on the formula explain this and you are told to apply the tonic to the roots from the point of a fine brush.

Kora:—It would be very foolish for a girl of 16 to try to reduce the size of her bust, as this apparent overdevelopment is only due to an uneven growth. Next year she will be so grown up in some other ways that she will be in proportion. Boys, and girls, too, grow abnormally in length of legs and arms and they feel just as sensitive as she does now, but a year or two more their bodies will have attained the proper development so all is in proportion.

All our young people are going gray

Tomorrow—Curling the Hair in This Season.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Fun

MOST SUCCESSFUL

"How did you enjoy your hunting trip, Brown?"

"Oh, great! You ought to have been along."

"Wish I had. What did you get?"

"Let's see—the first day nothing, the second day, nothing."

"Not much luck at first, huh?"

"No, but"—drawing himself up with conscious pride— "On the third day, seven tame ducks, two decoys and ten dollars fine."

LEAKING BADLY

This happened right in Eureka, where prohibition is the law, but not always the practice. The express company sent this postal to Major Wells: "Sir, please send without delay for the case of books directed to you which is at this station and is leaking badly."

FIFTY-FIFTY

"Love," declared the professor, "furnishes the power that moves the world."

"Yes," replied the cynic, "and divorce is the wrench that often jams the works."

SOMETHING NEW

"Physical culture, father, is perfectly lovely!" exclaimed an enthusiastic young miss just home from college. "Look! To develop the arms I grasp the rod in both hands and move it slowly from right to left."

"Well, well," replied dad admiringly, "what won't science discover next? Why, if that rod had straw on the other end you'd be sweeping."

Hick—I give it up. What is the difference?

Dick—A chicken is killed to dress and a flapper is dressed to kill.

EASY BUSINESS

"So your son's a contractor? What kind?"

"Debts."

It's A Fact

FLOATING SAFE

A safe that floats and is equipped with signaling devices for use when adrift has been adopted by the Dutch government for its mail steamers.

CHEMICAL MANUFACTURE

Rumania's newest industry is the manufatcure of chemicals from native raw materials, especially petroleum by-products.

PEANUT GROWING

Argentina is cultivating peanuts in increasing quantities each year.

FINGER PRINTS

The Postal Savings Branch of the Post Office Department uses a system of finger printing as a means of identification of depositors. There are objections to inking the fingers, and the Bureau of Standards was asked to study the problem and after some experimental work a new method which appears to be satisfactory has been devised.

It used to be that when a man got a letter marked "2 cents due," the letter was worth the 2 cents.

Book Reviews

Thrust close upon the heels of "The Age of Innocence," Edith Wharton sends us "Glimpses of the Moon," a novel as saturated with the frank laxities of the haute monde of today, as the preceding book was with the carefully masked corruptions of a generation ago.

To say that the book is magnificently written, almost approaches impertinence—Mrs. Wharton cannot write otherwise. And if one winces at times at her too sharp dissecting knife, her ruthless demolishments, one forgives all for her crystalline honesty. There is none of the counterfeit small change of sentimentality in the gold and silver of her written words.

"Glimpses of the Moon" deals with society in present-day America and Europe; that class of society, rather that feels itself wholly emancipated from the old, rigid traditions and is giddily riding the waves of its newly-discovered intellectual and emotional "freedom." It is a love story, and in the end a marriage is accomplished between the two principal characters, Nick and Susy, but never for an instant does the theory prevail that in this group at least, happy marriages, tempestuous love affairs or even fidelity itself are more than states of mind.

The book is saturated with the spirit of reckless, costly extravagance that can be precipitated into nothing better than passions of the cheapest sorts. The people in the story have the world for their playground and market place, but the things of the spirit that they bring home are cheap and tawdry toys.

The women in "Glimpses of the Moon" are brilliantly drawn; there are half a dozen of these—exotic, satiated butterfies—Susy, the heroine, has in her only the little saving grace of an honest love, otherwise she is as eager for the glitter and trappings as any of the rest.

It is safe to predict that "Glimpses of the Moon" will exceed "The Age of Innocence" in popularity; its appeal is closer to us today and therefore more real.

CHAPTER V

The Spectre at the Feast

Merriton, clad in his evening clothes and looking exceedingly handsome, stood by the smoking room door, with Tony West, short and thickset, wearing a suit that fitted badly and a collar which looked sizes too large for him (Merriton had long given up hope of making him visit a decent tailor) and waited for the sound of motor wheels which would announce the arrival of further guests.

It was the memorable Tuesday dinner, given in the first place for Dacre Wynne, as a sort of sendoff before he left for Cairo. In the second Merriton intended to break it gently to the other chaps that he was shortly to become a benedict.

Lester Stark and Tony West, very loyal and proven friends of Nigel Merriton, had arrived the evening before. Dacre Wynne was coming down by the 7 o'clock train, Dicky Fordyce, Reginald Lefroy—both fellow officers of Merriton's regiment, and home on leave from India—and mild old Dr. Bartholomew, whom everyone respected and few did not love, and who was in attendance at most of the bachelor spreads in London and out of it, as being a dry old body with a wit as fine as a rapier-thrust, and a fund of delicate, subtle humour, made up the little party.

The solemn front door bell of Merriton Towers clanged, and Borkins, very pompous and elegant, flung wide the door. Merriton saw Wynne's big, broad-shouldered figure swathed in the black evening cloak which he affected upon such occasions, and which became him mightily, and with an opera hat set at the correct angle upon his closely-clipped dark hair, step into the lighted hallway, and begin taking off his gloves.

Tony West's raspy voice chimed out a welcome, as Merriton went forward, his hand outstretched.

"Hello, old man!" said Tony. "How goes it? Lookin' a bit white about the gills, aren't you, eh? . . . Whew! Merriton, old chap, that's my ribs, if you don't mind. I've no penchant for your bayonet-like elbow to go prodding into 'em."

Merriton raised an eyebrow, frowned heavily, and by every other method under the sun tried to make it plain to West that the topic was taboo. Wherefore West raised his eyebrow, began to make a hasty exclamation, thought better of it, and then clapping his hand over his mouth broke into whistling the latest jazz tune, as though he had completely extricated both feet from the unfortunate mire he had planted them in—but with very little success.

Wynne was a frowning Hercules as he entered the pleasant smoke-filled room. Merriton's arm lay upon his sleeve, and he endured because he had to—that was all.

"Hello!" he said, to Lester Stark's rather half-hearted greeting—Lester Stark never had liked Dacre Wynne and they both knew it. "You here as well? Merriton's giving me a send-off and no mistake. Gad! you chaps will be envying me this time next week, I'll swear! Out on the briny for a decently long trip; plenty of pretty women—on which I'm bankin' of course"—he gave Merriton a sudden, searching look, "and not a care in the world. And the white lights of Cairo starin' at me across the water. Some picture, isn't it?"

"You may keep it!" said Tony West, with a shudder. "When you've smelled Cairo, Wynne, old boy, you'll come skulking with your tail between your legs. A 'rose by any other name would smell as sweet,' but Cairo—parts of it, mind you—well, Cairo's the stinkin'st rose I ever put my nose into, that's all!"

"There are some things which offend the nostrils more than—odours!" threw back Wynne with a black look in Nigel's direction, and with a sort of slur in his voice that showed he had been drinking more than was good for him that night. "I think I can endure the smells of Cairo after—other things. Eh, Nigel?" He forced a laugh which was mirthless and unpleasant, and Merriton, with a quick glance into his friends' faces, saw that they, too, had seen. Wynne was in one of his "devil" humours, and all the fun and joking and merriment in the world would never get him out of it. His pity for the man suddenly died a natural death. The very evident fact that Wynne had been drinking rather heavily merely added a further distaste to it all. He wished heartily that he had never ventured upon this act of unwanted friendliness and given a dinner in his honour. Wynne was going to be the spectre at the feast, and it looked like being a poor sort of show after all.

"Come, buck up, old chap!" broke out Tony West, the irrepressible. "Try to look a little less like a soured lemon, if you can! Or we'll begin to think that you've been and gone and done something you're sorry for, and are trying to work it off on us instead."

"Hello, here's Doctor Johnson," as the venerable Bartholomew entered the room. "How goes it tonight, sir? A fine night, what? Behold the king of the feast, his serene and mighty—oh, extremely mighty!—highness Prince Dacre Wynne, world explorer and soon to be lord-high-sniffer of Cairo's smells! Don't envy him the task, do you?"

He bowed with a flourish to the doctor who chuckled and his keen eyes, fringed with snow-white lashes, danced. He wore a rather long, extremely untidy beard, and his shirt-front as always was crumpled and worn. Anything more unlike a doctor it would be hard to imagine. But he was a clever one, nevertheless.

"Well, my talkative young parrot," he greeted West affectionately, "and how are you? . . . And who's party is this, anyhow? Yours or Merriton's? You seem to be putting yourself rather more to the fore than usual."

"Well, I'll soon be goin' aft," retorted West with a wide grin. "When old Nigel gets his innings. He's as chockful of news as an egg is of meat." West was one of the chosen few who had already heard of Nigel's engagement, and he was rather like a gossipy old woman—but his friends forgave it in him.

Merriton gave him a shove and he fell back upon Wynne, emitting a portentous groan.

"What the devil—?" began that gentleman, in a testy voice.

Tony grinned.

"Nigel was ever thus!" he murmured, with uplifted eyes.

"Shut up!!" thundered Stark, clapping a hand over West's mouth, and he subsided as the doorbell rang again, and Borkins ushered in Fordyce and Lefroy, two slim-hipped, dapper young gentlemen with the stamp of the army all over them. The party thus complete, Borkins gravely withdrew, and some fifteen minutes later the great gong in the hallway clanged out its summons. They streamed into the dining room, Doctor Bartholomew upon Tony West's fat little arm; Fordyce and Lefrow, side by side, hands in pockets and closely cropped heads nodding vigorously, Merriton and Lester Stark sauntering one slightly behind the other, and exchanging pleasantries as they went; and just in front of them, Dacre Wynne, solitary, huge, sinister and overbearing.

Wanne sat in the seat of honour on Merriton's right. The rest sorted themselves out as they wished, and made a good deal of noise and fun about it, too. Down the length of the long, exquisitely decorated table Merriton looked at his guests and thought it was not going to be so dismal after all.

Champaigne ran like water and spirits ran high. They joyfully toasted Wynne, and later on the news that Merriton imparted to them. In vain Dacre Wynne's low spirits were apparent. He must get over his grouch, that was all. Then once again the spirit of evil descended upon the gathering and it was Stark who precipitated its flight. "By the way, Nigel," he asked suddenly, "isn't there some ghost story or other pertaining to your district? Give us a recital of it, old boy. Walnuts and wine and ghost stories, you know, are just the right sort of thing after a dinner like this. Tony, switch off the lights. This old house of yours is the very place for ghosts. Now let us have it."

"Hold on," Nigel remonstrated. "Give me a chance to digest my dinner, and—dash it all, the thing's so deuced uncanny that it doesn't bear too much laughing at, either!"

"Come along! Six voices echoed the cry. "We're waiting, Nigel."

So Merriton had forthwith to oblige them. He, too, had had enough to drink—though drinking too heavily was not one of his vices—and his flushed face showed the excitement that burned within him.

Takes 20 Weeks to Count Half Million

SAN FRANCISCO.—A trio of men have just finished counting a bit of money here. It took them a couple of weeks to do it, but then they had to be accurate.

The amount of change, large and small, which they counted, amounted to a little more than half a billion dollars.

The three men were sent here by the treasury department to make the annual check on Uncle Sam's cash on hand in this part of the country.

The bulk of the money is in seventy pound solid gold hunks—what are known as "gold certificate bars." They are held in reserve just to prove that Uncle Sam's currency, his gold notes and federal reserve bank notes, are literally "good as gold."

The men doing the counting for Uncle Sam found that he had the following chicken-feed on hand:

In gold certificate bars, $368,343,655.04; in gold coin, $67,258,505; in gold bullion, $44,410,373.99; in silver dollars, $56,912,066; in other silver coins, $578,234; in silver bullion, $17,252,166.99; in nickels and pennies, $356,058.36; in currency, $348,240; in metal fund, $10,309.81.

The count showed an increase of coin and bullion in the mint of over $62,000,000 since the last settlement a year ago.

RADIO EXPLAINED

By E. H. LEWIS

INSTRUCTOR NEW YORK Y.M.C.A. RADIO SCHOOL

RADIO FREQUENCY AMPLIFICATION WITH THE SUPER-HETERODYNE

Resistance coupling of the stages of a cascade radio frequency amplifier has the advantage of making a compact arrangement, gives a wide range of wave lengths which may be efficiently received, reduces capacitance effects and reduces the liability of singing noises due to regeneration. It is not very effective at very short wave lengths, however, because of the low reactance within the usual vacuum tubes at very high frequencies. If tubes of very low inter-electrodic capacitance could be procured resistance coupling would offer many advantages not possible with choke coil or transformer coupling. It is quite possible that American made tubes of low capacitance (and therefore higher reactance at very high frequencies) may be developed in the future.

In the super-heterodyne method it is possible to reduce the frequency of the oscillations before they are amplified, the frequency being reduced to a lower radio but not an audio frequency. This could be accomplished by using a separate oscillation generator so tuned that the local oscillations in conjunction with the received oscillations would produce resultant beat oscillations of a super-audible or radio frequency. Amplification could then be had at the lower radio frequency and the short circuiting effect of the tubes on the resistances used for coupling could be eliminated. That is, at the lower frequency the reactance of the tubes would be higher. The method was originated by Mr. E. H. Armstong, to whom the regenerating circuits are due.

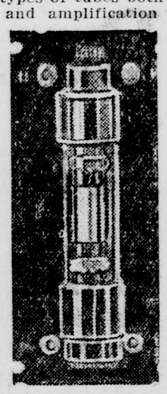
Taking an example, suppose that it is desired to receive on a wave length of 360 meters corresponding to a frequency of 833,333 cycles. The local oscillations generated by the separate oscillation generator may have a frequency of, say, 783,333 on 883,333 cycles, in which case the beat frequency would be 50,000 cycles. These beat oscillations are then rectified by a detector, which is the first tube in the circuit, and amplified by a resistance coupled radio frequency amplifier of several stages. These amplified oscillations are then applied to a second detector and rectified to produce audible sound in a pair of head telephone receivers providing the signal oscillations were damped or modulated. The modulation is not lost by stepping down the radio frequency in the manner described nor in the successive stages of radio frequency amplification. The selectivity may be, however, greatly increased.

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

A TUBE THAT OSCILLATES UNIFORMLY

New types of tubes both for detection and amplification are always a welcome addition to the radio public. This new type oscillates uniformly from 2 to 300 volts on the plate and 4 volts in the filament circuit. Current consumption is 0.8 amperes and does away with the ordinary rheostat control. Size of tube is 3¾ inches long and does not fit the usual socket. As an amplifier the manufacturer claims that this new tube will give five times the amount of amplification over his previous type and the other types on the market. At present the patent situation does not allow the sale or use of this tube as a detector, but after Nov. 7, 1922, the tube will not have to be used in tandem as a detector. The tubes have mountings made by the manufacturer which use the usual four connections with the exception that these connections are brought out to binding posts on a rectangular base. They function equally well in radio frequency circuits as in audio frequency hook ups.



They Say That

Columbia, and many another university as well, this year enrolled the largest summer school attendance in its history. The hunger of Americans for self-improvement is nowhere more manifest in this—that more than a hundred thousand are willing to spend earned leisure going to school, and in hot weather at that.

Summer school students are chiefly of two sorts—teachers on their way to higher pay and responsibilities, and undergraduates busy calking the leaks in their records. For the latter summer school is a necessary evil. Teachers expect from such unfortunates no enthusiasm and just enough attention to pull the desired credits out of the academic tests. Luckily for professors marooned on the campus in midsummer, these unfortunates are in a minority.

Far more numerous are they who come to summer school eagerly as deer to the salt licks, either because they love learning for its own sake or because the title to learning—a degree—gives each winner more pay and prestige in the teaching lists at home. Of course, some are keener for the degree than for knowledge, since they are well aware that back in Indiana or Iowa no doubter shall arise to question the worth of those mystic letters. But there is usually present in summer schools a considerable proportion of students whose serious interest is such as to delight the soul of Minerva herself, to say nothing of the souls of professors to whom such interest is as the breath of life. Indeed, he who delights in giving of his wisdom to receptive minds is almost sure to find himself happier in summer school than in the regular collegiate session.

Some institutions, particularly those in or near large centers of population, draw many summer students who come, as the stranger went to the funeral, "for the trip" and the attendant excitements. To the teacher from Gopher Prairie the metropolis means, in addition to classrooms and library, the theatre, lectures, museums, art galleries. Perhaps there has been a tendency in some quarters to make too great concessions to these cravings, and to view the summer session less as a serious educational advance and more as an educational hippodrome, with credits hung up as prizes for all who finish the mad round. That view, however, is passing, and will be gone altogether when the importance of summer sessions is fully recognized.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BLACK BUGS

"I think I shall have to get a new one. Yes, most certainly, I shall need a new one very soon," said Uncle Wiggily, seemingly speaking to himself, one day. He was hopping down off the porch of his hollow stump bungalow to go adventuring.

"What is it you will have to get new, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Do you mean a new red, white and blue rheumatism crutch? If you do, I shall be very happy to gnaw you one out of a cornstalk as I did at first."

"Thank you, no, Nurse Jane, it isn't a new crutch that I need," spoke the bunny rabbit. "I'm speaking of my coat. Either this old coat of mine is getting so small or else I am getting so fat that I can hardly button it around me. As it is, I'm almost afraid to sneeze or laugh when I go out in it."

"Why?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Because," answered Uncle Wiggily, with a sideways twinkle of his pink nose, "because if I laugh or sneeze too hard I may burst all the buttons off my tight coat!"

"Well, I hope nothing like that happens," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"So do I," exclaimed Mr. Longears. "For if all the buttons burst off my coat when I happened to be out adventure, I would be ashamed to come home until after dark. Well, I'm off, Nurse Jane. I'm off, but I hope my buttons don't come off, though they surely will if I laugh or sneeze too hard."

And truly, as Uncle Wiggily hopped away, Nurse Jane saw that his coat was very tight around him.

"Dear old bunny rabbit!" murmured the muskrat lady. "I hope he doesn't lose his buttons!"

Uncle Wiggily hopped along, and along, taking care that nothing tickled his pink nose to make him sneeze. And he tried not to think of anything funny so he wouldn't need to laugh.

"For as surely as I laugh or sneeze—off will come my buttons!" murmured Uncle Wiggily.

A little later, all of a sudden, he was crossing a field when he heard some voices sadly calling:

"Help! Help! Oh, who will help us in our trouble?"

"Hum!" thought Uncle Wiggily. "Trouble is nothing to laugh at or to sneeze at, so I'm safe. I'll see who needs help." Looking around Uncle Wiggily saw a large, flat stone, and the voices seemed to come from beneath it.

"Help! Help!" again came the cry.

"Who are you and what's the trouble?" asked the bunny, for well he knew it could not be the Fuzzy Fox or the Woozie Wolf under the flat stone.

"We are some black bugs," was the answer. "The wind blew the stone over on us and we can't get out from under."

"I'll help you then," offered Mr. Longears, and with his strong paws he soon raised the flat stone.

From beneath it crawled some round, black, shiny bugs, each one about the size of a twenty-five cent piece.

"Thank you for taking the stone off our backs," said the round, shiny, black bugs. "You did us a great favor, Uncle Wiggily, and some day perhaps we may do one for you."

"Oh, don't worry about that!" spoke the bunny gentleman, and on he hopped to have an adventure. He had not gone on very much farther until, all of a sudden, as he was going through a field of goldenrod, he brushed off some of the golden yellow dust. The dust blew up the bunny's nose, tickling it and, almost before he knew it, Uncle Wiggily felt that he was going to sneeze.

"And I know what will er-ker-choo—happen when I—ker-snitzio—when I — er — ker-CHOO! — sneeze. Oh!" cried Uncle Wiggily. And he gave such a loud sneeze that immediately half the buttons burst off his tight coat.

"Oh, dear!" cried the bunny. "This is —er— most ker-foozium —too —er— KER-FOO!—bad!" And he sneezed again, bursting off another button.

"I had better hurry home before I get to laughing, and shed all my buttons," said Uncle Wiggily, but just then a little hoptoad boy came skipping along, and when he saw Uncle Wiggily the hoptoad boy began laughing.

"Ha! Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho! Ho! Oh, you look so—Ha Ha!—funny—so funny—such a funny bunny—Ha Ha!—with half your buttons gone. Uncle Wiggily—Ho! Ho!" laughed the hoptoad boy. And he had such a hearty laugh that Uncle Wiggily couldn't help joining in.

"Ha! Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho! Ho!" laughed the bunny, and then the rest of the buttons burst off his tight coat. "Oh, dear" cried Mr. Longears when he saw this. "All my buttons gone, just as I feared, and no way to sew them on. I shall have to wait until after dark to go home for I would never dare walk along with my coat all unbuttoned. Oh dear!"

"Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho!" laughed the bunny.

"We will help you!" called some voices from the grass.

"Who are you?" asked the rabbit.

"The round black bugs," was the answer. "We are shiny like your buttons. We will hold fast to one side of your coat with our front legs and to the other side of your coat with our hind legs," said the largest black bug, "and in that way we'll pull your coat edges together. And we'll look just like buttons; see if we don't."

So ten of the round black bugs very kindly made believe they were buttons on Uncle Wiggily's coat, holding it together as he hopped along, and everyone who saw him thought his coat was buttoned as it always was. And when he reached his bungalow the bugs flew away, after the bunny had thanked them, and Nurse Jane bought Mr. Longears a new and larger coat with real buttons on it.

So everything came out all right, you see, and if the sugar spoon doesn't climb out of the salt cellar to go riding in the gravy boat, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the buzz bug.

SPORTS

The Sport Crucible

By Davis J. Walsh

International News Service Sports Editor

O, WURRA, WURRA!

Stark as the dead, my hope
Lurked in the paths of dusk.
Grimly the hangman's rope
Waits for its useless husk.

Not where the crowd may see,
Not in the spotlight's glare.
Naught of publicity,
Greeting my black despair.

Bowed down with care and grief,
Counting each fearful stroke.
Lonely beyond belief,
I watched a game of roque.

Judging from all available data on the subject, the winner of a roque tournament might very well be hailed as another cheese champion.

The boxing game is a fertile field for sleight-of-hand business of one kind or another, but it remained for the Leonard-Tendler bout to uncover an old dodge, which, however, was as new as fresh paint to the writer. The bout itself was strictly on the plumb-bob level, of course, the trick in question merely coming up in conversation at Tendler's camp before the fight.

Briefly, the discussion involved the question of Leonard's ability to make the weight and the necessity of keeping his handlers away from the scales once the champion stepped on them. They feared that one of the enemy's retinue would attempt to catch Leonard by the arm during the weighing-in formalities.

I couldn't see the value of such a maneuver and said as much. It was then I learned that by pulling downward on a man's arm one can make his pounds lighter than he actually is, the answer being that much of his weight is pulled off the opposite foot.

And yet they claim hokum died with P. T. Barnum.

The Centre college football team is known as the Praying Colonels. In which it differs only slightly from the owners of the New York Yankees, who now are known as the Paying Colonels, thanks to their business activities with Harry Frazee.

MATTER OF TEMPERAMENT

If R. Norris Williams had the gift of sustained effort, so obvious in Tilden's game, the matter of ranking tennis players from year to year would be a much more complicated proposition. Williams has everything that any other man in the world may claim save the ability to keep going at top speed for any respectable interval.

He does not quit and it is not a matter of chronic indifference, for Williams likes to win as well as the next. But he doesn't know the meaning of perseverance.

Let him strike a streak of brilliancy and he is likely to beat any man on the courts. But it is always a streak only. He lapses into careless habits once he has proved to his own satisfaction that his game is essentially sound.

In other words, Williams is only another of those unfortunates who cannot stand prosperity.

CHICAGO COMES BACK

It is highly beneficial to the financial health of major league baseball that Chicago has returned to its former high estate in the two races. It is perhaps the best baseball town in the country and the game could ill afford the luxury of having the Cubs and White Sox in the second division for more than several years in succession.

Both staged remarkable comebacks this year in the face of universal criticism and the most encouraging feature of the entire business is that the Cubs are building for the future wih young, hustling ball players.

Charles Wood, Jr., the Boys' Indoor Champion winner of the Metropolitan Junior tournament last year, and holder of other tennis titles, is worth keeping your eye on if you are interested in the game.

Charley's game has shown a great improvement this season. Jumping into the older group, this boy has defeated some mighty good senior players in such a way that it stamps him as a comer.

At Providence last month he drew Tilden in the third round of the Rhode Island Championships. Charley, who comes to Bill's shoulder, went after the champ as if Tilden was a school boy opponent, and in the two sets that ensued, young Wood often headed the score and kept the gallery in an uproar with his spirited play.

Charley learned his tennis from Carl Benton who developed Richard's backhand. Young Wood won his first tournament and annexed the Boys' National Indoor title in 1919. Last year he was winner of the Metropolitan Junior Title, Rhode Island State Championship and Columbia Intercollegiate.

Charley likes to shoot pool, play the "uke," sing, and admits that he was born in Gadsden, Ala., only 18 years ago. He is 5 feet, 7½ inches tall. Just now Brown University is lucky, for Wood plans to enter there for a collegiate course.

Charley is a past master at the net. He is a mighty good volleyer and has all the confidence under heaven. Even when he played Tilden he admitted that he expected to beat him!

He's a comer.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE

PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Princeton university in the east and the University of California in the far west are two remote but important football institutions that are going to have a hard time during the coming year by reason of players lost through graduation. At California, Coach Andy Smith will be minus seven of his first string men. Smith will now be able to demonstrate his boast that his second string men were as good as his regulars. In the case of Princeton, the Tigers lose a number of bright stars that it will be practically impossible to replace. On the other hand, Yale university looks to be in good shape among the big eastern institutions, while Stanford university on the Pacific coast has prospects that loom better than they have had in a couple of seasons.

With the Davis Cup international competition and the National lawn tennis championships just ahead, this popular outdoor game is about to engage the attention of the sports public very much to the exclusion of everything else. The fact that there will be a number of foreigners over here as a result of the Davis Cup competition means that our national tournament also will have a very decided international flavor. As far as the Davis Cup is concerned, the betting is all in favor of America retaining the famous trophy. Anything different would come as a distinct shock and a surprise.

The fact that Spain is to be a competitor here for the Davis International Tennis Cup is indicative of the fact that the late unpleasantness which occurred between that country and this during 1898 is forgotten. It often has been said that if the diplomats of the various countries were selected from among the athletes and sportsmen, there would be no wars. However, the question arises, would there be any diplomats?

It is interesting to read at this time reports emanating from various institutions to the effect that this or that university is going to have the strongest team in years. To all intent and purposes, their opponents might as well close up shop for the reason that all is over already excepting the shouting. On what these prognostications are based it is difficult to tell, in view of the fact that none of the players are on the ground, and the new material that will be available is not yet even in sight. Of course, we have reference to the coming football season which now is only about a month away.

Glendale to Meet Palomar Club Sunday

John A. Cobb, manager of the Glendale Merchants' Baseballe team, was one of the central figures in the meeting of the Greater Southern California Baseball Managers' association, held last night in Los Angeles.

At the meeting arrangements were perfected for the game to be played on the local diamond Sunday afternoon, when the Merchants will take on the Palomar baseball club, reputed to be one of the strong teams of the Los Angeles district. Play will start promptly at 3 o'clock, says Cobb, who promises the usual good brand of baseball which the Merchants put out.

Several new teams were admitted to the association at the meeting last night, it is stated, and plans were discussed for the formation of a more definite league system to be put into effect next season. In this way it is expected to schedule games and keep standings so that the Southern California semi-professional champion team may be determined each season.

Glendale is now recognized as a dangerous opponent, says "Ty" Cobb, who finds it possible now to book games with the best teams instead of having to take what he can get. The best teams which the association has been able to provide for the Glendale games have so far been unable to trim the Merchants, and the locals are now ranked with "the best there are."

Wes Aageson will probably twirl for the Merchants Sunday. Aggie has gained a reputation for himself, and has been frequently spoken of as a coming big-leaguer. King, who has already been spoken for by Tulsa, Oklahoma, for the next Western league season, will catch as usual, and maintain his batting average which at present is rated at the almost fabulous score of over .500.

Although the exact lineup and batting order has not yet been announced by Cobb, it will probably be something like this: Cummings, 2 b; Griffin or Buck, lf; Harris, cf; King, c; Bell, 1b; Acosta, 3b; Wilson, ss; Cobb, rf; Aageson, p.

Walt Heidler, Glendale's high-speed hurler, who last Sunday outpitched the much-touted Trautwein to a frazzle, will probably be out of the game for several weeks. Walt severely injured his left thumb in an accident early this week, it is reported, and will be unable to use the member for some time. He will not only be out of baseball for several games, but had to call off a boxing match in which he was to have been one of the principals, to be staged in Hollywood next Friday.

Except for Heidler's injury, the Merchants are in excellent form, and since Heidler was not to be used Sunday, Cobb is confident of giving Palomar the game of its life, and if the gods are with him, of defeating the visitors.

SPORTS CHATTER

PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Is Benny Leonard, world lightweight boxing champion, going back, or are the present crop of boxers better than they were up to and since the time Leonard won the title?

Leonard knocked out Freddie Welsh May 28, 1917 in the ninth round at New York, thereby annexing the world title. Prior to winning the title Leonard had been creating a sensation by his work and the quick way he disposed of his opponents by the K. O. decision. It was Leonard's knockout of Richie Mitchell early in 1917 that put him in line for a crack at Welsh, as up to that time Mitchell had been considered the next opponent for the champion. The match was consummated and Leonard again lived up to his reputation as having a "kick" by putting Welsh to sleep.

Up to the time he won the title Leonard had an enviable string of K. O. victims. In 1915 he won four by his sleep-producer; 1915 found seven victims, while in 1917 he accounted for fifteen K. O.'s. Then, as most champions do, Leonard did not take the chances as of old, and in 1918 we find he only K. O'd. three men. He did a little better the next year with eight victims, and in 1920 he accounted for six. Then he dropped and last year only one K. O. is shown on the record books against Leonard's name, while this year he has not knocked out any boxer of ability at all.

Think back to 1917 and the years following. See if you don't remember something in the write-ups of the champion's fights along these lines: "Leonard, smiling and debonair as ever, his hair beautifully parted, unruffled and his face unmarked, left the ring after knocking out Smith, looking as though he had just finished his morning toilet."

The fact that Leonard usually left the ring without a mark, his hair beautifully parted, for years, was commented on by every boxing writer in the country, showing his ability to duck, dodge and evade blows. His ability as a boxer kept his beauty unmarred.

Of late Benny Leonard has taken some terrible lickings. Note the trimming Jack Britton gave him, closely followed by another punishing fight with Rockey Kansas and then Lew Tendler gave him something to remember and in his last fight at Michigan City a few nights ago Ever Hammer knocked some of Leonard's teeth loose and otherwise marred the champion's countenance. In deep contrast to the way the writers used to write about Leonard's pompadour and part here is a sentence from a write-up on Leonard after his fight with Hammer.

"His (Leonard's) teeth are in terrible shape, and the ugly cuts over his right eye are sufficient to keep most fighters out of the ring."

Leonard has had five hard fights in the last month and it appears that each one of them has caused the champion the loss of considerable beauty. It was not like that in days of old. What is the matter? Is Leonard slipping? Has he lost his defensive factor of dodging and judging blows? or is it possible that his opponents are better than men he has met in the past? We leave the answer to you, dear reader.

Sport High Spots

With an extremely makeshift lineup, made necessary by the numerous injuries recently suffered by the players and the absence of Manager Killifer, the Angels yesterday put up the best exhibition of baseball seen on the Los Angeles diamond for the past two weeks. Clyde Beck, the clever utility infielder who has been warming the bench all season, made his debut noticeable by performing perfectly in the field and also at the rubber. In three trips to the plate Beck smacked out three hits, scoring a run and aiding materially in the Seraphs' 3 to 2 victory over the Sacramento team.

Tony Rego, the Los Angeles sandlotter who has been sharing the dugout honors with Beck all through these weary months, also came out of his shell with a bang. Had it not been for the superb pitching of this diminutive backstop Charley Pick and his gang of Solons would have easily walked away with the game, his clever pegging in the opening round alone saving two possible runs. Four would-be base stealers were picked off by Rego during the afternoon, among them being Marty McGraffigan, the league's leading purloiner, and Merlin Kopp, who holds the distinction of being the fastest player in the circuit. Not a bad day for a rookie!

For the second time in two days, Sir Tom, the Seattle Yacht club's speedy craft, skippered by Ted Geary, yesterday won first place in the race for R-craft sloops in the feature event of the day in the annual Southern California Yachting association regatta, which is being held at Newport harbor. The northerner's victory, however, was not so easily gained as was that of the day previous, for it was only during the latter part of the race that the ultimate winner managed to dash past the speedly California, with Matt Walsh at the helm.

Proof that the University of Southern California gridiron squad is respected by larger institutions of the northern section of the coast was shown yesterday when it was announced at Berkeley that the best-informed football men in the west had been obtained to officiate at this year's California-U. S. C. game, which is to be held in the new stadium in Pasadena during the latter part of October. George Varnell, Spokane, Washington, star who has served in official capacities in Pasadena several times during the past few years, has been selected to act as referee in the great intersectional clash. Dudley Clark and Harry Miner will be the two other officials. Varnell will also referee in the California-Stanford and California-Washington games.

Miske and Fulton Are Ready for Gong

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 11.—Billy Miske and Fred Fulton, heavyweights are ready for their fifteen-round bout to be held tonight at Lexington Ball Park, St. Paul. Both fighters are in excellent condition and both predict an early victory.

One of the largest crowds gathered in the Northwest is expected.

Better go home and make a net than to jump into the pool after the fish.

Pirates Will Figure In Series, Is Belief

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—Rather strange movements have been made during the last week among the boys who wear the loud and the big rocks.

While most of the fans are picking New York or St. Louis to win the National League pennant, many of the big gamblers are taking the short end that the Pittsburgh Pirates will play one end of the world's series.

Five days ago a tip sent out of Pittsburgh into New York carried the information that the Pirates would win fifteen straight games, take the lead in the race and cinch the pennant by the middle of September. The fact that the Pirates have already won ten straight makes the story interesting, to say the least.

Some of the stories going around are far fetched. One of them being passed out now is that the Pirates blew the pennant last year so that the Giants could get into the big money from an all-New York series and that a promise was made to allow the Pirates to have it this year.

Tagging All Bases

The Giants are staging a new drama. It is called "shooting the chutes." They dropped their third straight game to the Reds, making seven victories out of fifteen games in the latest western invasion. Incidentally the Giants have lost ten out of their last thirteen starts.

The winning spurt of the Pirates is still booming. They took the Phils into camp again and are now knocking at the top.

The Cards wended their way westward filled with the pennant blood. They won the final game from the Braves and have a lead of a game and a half.

Intelligence is not shown by witty words but by wise actions.

Spooners Lose Their Favorite Park Spot

RUTHERFORD, N. J.—Rutherford young folk are enraged today at the razing of the bandstand, "Spooners' Paradise," in Lincoln Park.

It was only a paradise of timber and paint to begin with, which made it an easy matter to raze when the puritanical element decided it had to go.

There was no one here who would assume responsibility for the destruction of the bandstand, although indignation was at fever pitch. If it had to be torn down this was no summer for such an act, it was argued, with rain a daily occurrence and no shelter in town except the movies where lovers could comfortably hold hands and whisper sweet nothings.

It never would have come down at all if complaints had not been made to Edmund Tate, a Borough Councilman, that it was detrimental to the morals of the young people. Was there not one occasion when a youth had smashed an electric light bulb so that darkness might brood over the "Spooners' Paradise"? Was it not setting a bad example to the children of the town that their flapper sisters and flipper brothers should set out for the bandstand with the avowed intention of spooning?

The council appealed to H. H. Edwards, president of the Shade Tree Commission. In the dead of night, after the next meeting of the Borough council, the bandstand vanished as if by magic. Some of the neighbors vowed they heard a hammering, a banging and a rumbling cart in the early hours of the morning, but there were no eyewitnesses of the destruction. The townsfolk feel they have been cheated out of their bandstand for nothing.

A good example is the best sermon.

Gold Supply Now Largest In History

WASHINGTON.—Gold held by the central banks of all principal world powers now amounts to $7,851,000,000—a new record. This sum is an increase of $1,238,000,000 in two years. The increase is due to the fact that governments by restrictive gold policies have brought gold out of hiding. Then there has been a steady flow of new gold from the mines.

Of the world's total the United States has 40 per cent or $3,170,000,000. Most of this gold is in the possession of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks of the Federal Reserve system, or in the vaults of the United States treasury and its branch depositories. The grand total of all available gold does not include gold in Russia.

The Federal Reserve Board is authority for the statement that the major part of Russian gold has found its way into the reserves of other countries. Most of it has reached the vaults of the reserve banks in the United States. The Russian central reserve gold fund originally amounted to $787,000,000 in 1913.

America's gold holdings have risen at a tremendous rate since the Great War. Total gold stocks in the United States in 1913 were $691,000,000. Five years later it had increased to $2,245,000,000.

Gold reserves of Great Britain and France have dropped considerably in the past two years because of heavy shipments to the United States to pay obligations. Japan is absorbing much of the gold that is now going out of the United States. Japan now stands fourth in the list of principal gold holders.

If you have a new idea all the failures want to help you put it in operation.

Paris Flooded With Fake Masterpieces

PARIS—A mysterious hidden studio, which is, in reality a veritable factory for turning our counterfeit masterpieces, is the object of search by prefecture detectives.

This factory is somewhere in the Latin quarter. There poor students and starving artists, it is believed, are paid too tempting wages for copying the works of great painters, the originals of which would command huge prices. These copies are then sold at auctions either deliberately in place of the original, which may be in a private collection, or as a "newly discovered" work of the master.

Discovery of such "art treasures" on the market has led to the belief in the existence of this "masterpiece factory," and to the combing of the Latin quarter by the police in search of it.

In particular, spurious works of modern painters of note have been detected, a variation of the old game of counterfeiting the older masters. All of the counterfeits discovered so far have been signed with the painter's name, cleverly forged.

Thomas Knock, an American art connoisseur, was the first to put the police on the track of the swindlers. Knock recently paid 300,000 francs for a collection of 107 pictures.

Out of this group of pictures an expert picked forty-three counterfeits. Among them were works by Cozanne, Pissaro, Matisse, Renoir, Sisley, Sautin and Signac, representing for the most part a popular modern school of painting, the works of which bring high prices.

Hawaii Inaugurates Radio Instruction

HONOLULU.—Plans for the inauguration of rural education in Hawaii by radio telephone have been announced by Vaughan MacCaughey, superintendent of public instruction at Honolulu.

Superintendent MacCaughey's plans call for the installation of standard radiophone receiving sets in all rural schools, which at first will be used primarily to enable both school children and adults of the community to "listen in" on the regular broadcasting of musical and other entertainment numbers from Honolulu, working along the lines of making rural schoolhouses serve as community centers.

It is planned to install as soon as possible a powerful transmitting plan at headquarters of the public instruction department in Honolulu from which it will be possible to broadcast lectures on various educational subjects at certain hours of the day. This arrangement will also make possible the broadcasting of lectures to teachers by the superintendent or by educators who may be in Honolulu, perhaps passing through the city on trans-Pacific steamers.

Plans also are being worked out for the broadcasting of extension courses, particularly in agriculture, from the extension department of the University of Hawaii at Honolulu, a feature which is expected to prove of great value to farmers in the outlying districts.

THIRTY IMPORTANT MEASURES GO ON STATE BALLOT

Varied Questions Will Be Decided by Voters at November Election

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 11.—Thirty measures, including referendum, initiatives, bond acts and constitutional amendments, have qualified and will go on the ballot for acceptance or rejection by the voters of California at the November election, it was announced late today at the office of Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan. The time for filing additional signatures for the propositions expired last Tuesday.

Sufficient signatures have been filed to qualify four additional measures bringing the total up to thirty — it was announced by Charles Hagerty, election statistician. These were as follows:

An act increasing the number of signatures required to place initiatives relative to taxation on the ballot.

An act prohibiting vivisection.

An act providing for the taxation of land franchises, otherwise known as the "single tax act."

An act regulating the granting of franchises to interurban and suburban street railways and motor-driven vehicles.

These measures will appear at the bottom of the ballot in the order named, it was announced.

Four Petitions Fail

Four measures for which petitions have been circulated failed to qualify because an insufficient number of signatures were filed. These were as follows:

An act creating a State Racing commission, regulating races and permitting wagering under certain conditions.

An act providing for a reapportionment of State Senatorial districts by giving every unit of 20,000 population a senator, known as the Windrem plan.

An act to place in the constitution the rules and regulations of civil service.

An act requiring all children of California between certain ages to attend the public schools for a prescribed period.

How They'll Appear

The measures will appear on the ballot in the following order:

1—Veterans' validating act, validating the proposed $10,000,000 bond issue to carry out provisions of veteran legislation.

2—Wright prohibition enforcement act, providing for local enforcement of the Volstead act.

3—Soldier bonus act, the $10,000,000 bonus act.

4—Land settlement, another bond issue to carry out the veterans' land settlement act.

5—State housing act, a referendum measure, known sometimes as the "shingle bill."

6—Constitutional amendment providing for the regulation of the title insurance business.

7—An amendment providing for the exemption of soldiers from taxation in certain cases.

8—Providing for the annexation or consolidation of municipal corporations.

9—Relative to the framing and ratification of municipal charters.

10—An initiative providing for the taxation of publicly owned utilities.

11—An initiative to regulate publicly owned utilities by placing them under the supervision of the State Railroad Commission.

12—Initiative requiring that a State budget be prepared before the beginning of each session of the Legislature to be approved by the Governor and that no special appropriations shall be made except under certain conditions.

13—Constitutional amendment making various changes in court procedure and changing the salaries of justices and judges.

14—Constitutional amendment relative to the taxation of notes, stocks, bonds and mortgages.

15—Constitutional amendment relating to taxation rates for State purposes.

16—Initiative creating a special examining board of chiropractors.

17—Amendment relative to use of water in streams outside of the State.

18—Amendment providing for the joint construction of public works by municipalities.

19—California water and power act, creating a board for the development of hydro-electric power by the State and proposing a bond issue of $500,000,000 to finance the undertaking.

20—Initiative creating a special examining board for osteopaths.

21—Amendment relative to irrigation districts specifying manner by which they may be created.

22—Relative to absent voting.

23—Relative to deposit of public moneys.

24—Referendum prohibiting the unlawful practice of law, otherwise known as the lawyers' bill and said to have been aimed at trust companies and banks.

25—Amendment providing for the appointment of judges pro tempore.

26—Amendment relative to the formation of school districts in more than one county.

27—Initiative relative to signatures required for initiatives relating to taxation.

28—Prohibiting vivisection.

29—Single tax.

30—Regulating franchises of street railways and motor vehicles.

ISUEL

As State Printer and as State Treasurer, Friend W. Richardson has demonstrated his ability as an economist in State Administration.

((From the Petaluma Daily Argus)

Governor Stephens vociferously denies his administration has been extravagant and adopts very clever methods to substantiate his denial. He declares, for instance, that the increased cost of government is chargeable to the people—not to him or to his political machine, which, by the way, has grown in numbers from 4,000 to over 11,000 during his two terms in office. The matter of determining to just what extent the people are responsible for increased governmental costs is very simple, especially if we consider the increase for the last two years. The Governor's budget for 1919-20 was $52,673,255.66. At the last election the people voted increases amounting to $18,000,000. These two sums added together give us a total of $70,673,255.66. The Governor's budget for the present biennial was $91,690,326.09. Simple subtraction shows that the increase in cost of government, for just the present two-year period, directly chargeable to the administration, is $21,017,070.43. Reducing these figures to tabulated form makes them more impressive:

Stephens' budget 1919-20	$52,673,255.66
Voted by the people	18,000,000.00
Chargeable to Stephens	21,017,070.43
Stephens' 1921-22 budget	$91,690,326.09

In further explanation of the charge of extravagance, the Governor declares his budget for the present biennial was $81,000,000, not $91,000,000. That's just plain side-stepping. The amount called for by the budget submitted to the Legislature was $81,000,000, but this sum was increased by the Legislature to $91,690,326.09, by and with the consent of the Governor, and it is neither unfair nor unjust to the administration to insist that the 1921-22 budget is $91,690,326.09.

In further explanation of the excessively high cost of his administration to the people, the Governor says: "What would you do—weaken your school system, starve the blind, the deaf, the insane, abolish the progressive accomplishments of the past ten years?" etc., etc. The answer to that is that all these functions of government were amply financed in the $52,000,000 budget of 1919-20; that the only increase to that budget not chargeable to the administration was the $18,000,000 voted by the people; that had the administration increased the cost of government for the present biennial only to that extent the 1921-22 budget would have been $70,000,000 instead of $91,000,000.

The Argus greatly regrets the necessity for saying these things about the Governor. He is one of the "nicest" men we know, genial, likeable, a genuine "good fellow." As a "social Governor" he is a complete success. But the time is come when the people must consider the other side of the Governorship the business side. Under Governor Stephens the cost of government in this state has increased 154 per cent in comparison with a population increase of 25 per cent. The per capita cost of government in California is three times the average throughout the country. In short, the people are being taxed to the point of confiscation by every tax-empowered political body and the people are going to see to it that this burden is lightened. The most glaring and inexcusable abuse of the taxing power has been by the state government. Here, then, is the place to start the task of securing lower taxes. The more shining the mark the better, and the more sharp the warning to the lesser tax-levying bodies. The remedy is the elimination of Stephens and his machine and the election of Friend W. Richardson, a real, tried and true economist, as Governor.

Many Letters Indorse Ford for President

DETROIT.—Every State except Maine, New Mexico and Nevada has been heard from in the form of unsolicited letters indorsing Henry Ford for President of the United States, officers of the "Ford for President Club" of Dearborn report.

State clubs are being organized and the Ford "boom" will be placed upon a firm foundation long before the 1924 campaign.

Authors of the letters belong to both Republicans and Democrats and have expressed their willingness to vote for Ford regardless of party affiliations, according to William Daw, president of the club.

Mute Since Birth, He Acquires His Speech

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.—Clarence McAtee, a 10-year-old boy mute since his birth, suddenly recovered his speech after praying for it at the altar of a tented church where evangelistic services had been carried on by the Pentecostal denomination, at Broad Oaks, according to Mrs. Ida Tribbett, of Sturgis, Mich., the evangelist in charge. Those acquainted with the boy say he had not spoken before. The alleged miracle is vouched for by various persons of the city who were in attendance at the meeting.

Genuine courtesy springs from the heart, not from the lips.

This Man Has No Luck 'Bulling' Bull

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — You can't "bull" the bull.

Take it from Edward Lueke, who seized a club and drove a bull from his garden. Lueke pursued the invader until he reached the street, whereupon the bull wheeled on his haunches and started after his erstwhile pursuer.

Lueke dove through a barbed-wire fence with sartorial disaster, the maddened bull uncomfortably in the rear. Lueke scaled a tree, where he remained until the bull was lassoed by a neighbor.

None is so arrogant as the beggar suddenly rich.

Customers

The business man should realize that he is separated from his customers — old and new — by minutes, not miles.

In these days of strenuous competition the successful merchant must make the best use of his resources, and there is none more important than his long distance telephone service.

In the transaction of business the use of the long distance telephone will mean the prompt answer, the personal touch and an economy of time.

Cupid Wins Decision From American Navy

BOSTON.—It was Cupid versus the U. S. N., and Daniel won a "popular" decision. When naval discipline might have prevented the marriage of Antonio D'Ambra, of the U. S. receiving ship Southery, and Miss Frances Spinella, of Charlestown, Antonio leaped overboard and started to swim for shore and his nuptial appointment.

Antonio was overhauled by a detail from his ship, but discipline relented, and he was permitted to go ashore and wed Miss Spinella. Discipline again relented, and Antonio was given a twenty-four-hour furlough. Antonio was technically under arrest during the marriage ceremony, but his guard, Corporal Ash, acted as best man.

Street Car Company Is Sued for 50 Cents

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Thomas McAllister, attorney, and a leader in the younger set here, has brought suit for 50 cents against a conductor of the street railway company, claiming the conductor short-changed him that amount. McAllister is reputed to be one of the city's wealthiest men.

"It's the principle of the thing," McAllister said.

Mrs. F. B. Webster Entertains Friends

Mrs. Frank B. Webster of 646 North Orange street, and her sister-in-law, Miss Pearl Webster, principal of North School, Redondo Beach, who is visiting relatives here, entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of the former with a daintily served luncheon in honor of Miss Isabelle Harvey, supervisor of art, Redondo Beach schools.

Miss Harvey was delightfully surprised to find the other guests were old school friends of the past few years, including Mrs. Albert Jackson of Los Angeles, Miss Helen Hintz of Hollywood, Miss Margaret de Garmo and Miss Pearl Webster of Redondo Beach.

The color scheme of yellow and white pervaded the dining room and after the several courses had been served the guests repaired to the cool and cozy patio and spent a most delightful afternoon sewing and chatting over past experiences. Before the guests departed they one and all voted Mrs. Webster a most charming hostess.

A WASTED LIFE

"If you had your life to live over," she asked, "would you pursue a different course from that you have taken?"

"Yes," he replied. "Instead of spending years acquiring an education I'd bring out a new kind of butterscotch or an improved chocolate bar and amount to something."

BOY SCOUTS PLAN TO ENLARGE THEIR PUBLICATION

Walter Sullivan Is Chosen as Editor in Chief of Verdugo Monthly

"The Verdugo Hills Scout," official publication of the Verdugo Hills Boy Scout council, is to become a regular monthly, printed instead of mimeographed, with the work done on Scout-owned presses, according to plans of H. F. Benner, Scout executive of the district.

Walter Sullivan, assistant scoutmaster of Troop No. 1, Glendale, has been chosen as editor in chief, with Eagle Scout Clifford Walcott, Troop No. 2, Glendale, as associate editor and general manager.

Mr. Sullivan is an enthusiastic scout booster, and has been a member of his troop for seven years. Until his graduation from Glendale Union High school last June, he edited the "Explosion," weekly high school paper. During the Catalina Island camp this summer, he was appointed temporary editor of the "Scout," and his paper was so well liked that he was chosen to hold the position permanently.

Holds Highest Position

Clifford Walcott holds the highest possible rank in Scouting, the position of Eagle Scout. In Mr. Benner's opinion, he is well qualified to look after the business department of the paper.

The editor and manager, with Mr. Benner, are visiting the various troops in the district this week to have appointed a special reporter in each troop who will send in monthly news articles on the activities of their respective troops.

Executive Benner predicts that with the new and energetic staff, the publication will become very popular with the Scouts and their leaders, and that the time will come soon when, instead of being mimeographed as at present, it will be printed on presses owned by the Scouts. When this time comes, a Scout who has passed the merit badge test in printing will be selected to manage the actual publishing of the paper.

Frank Booth Is Back On Real Estate Job

After autoing over the surrounding country Frank Booth states that he is "back into harness again" and has now settled down to the real estate business as representative of one of the large firms of home builders on the Pacific coast. This firm builds homes for those who own their own lots without any payment down, the buyers merely paying for the houses like rent.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth state that during their recent travels by automobile they have seen more of California than they did in their twenty years' residence in this state. They declare Glendale cannot be excelled for a home place.

Mr. Booth will conduct his new business from his residence, 221 West Burchett street, until his new business block at East Broadway and Kenwood street is completed. Plans for this structure are already under way.

MRS. H. B. POTTER RETURNS HERE TO MAKE HER HOME

Former Glendale Resident Disposes of Property In San Diego

Mrs. Harriest B. Potter, formerly of San Diego, arrived from that city Wednesday evening to make her permanent home in Glendale. Before leaving the Southern city she disposed of all her real estate holdings there and intends to invest in Glendale property, according to her brother, A. H. Nichols of the Circle Real Estate Company, 120 North Brand Boulevard.

Some years ago Mrs. Potter was a resident of Glendale. When Mrs. M. L. Tight, local realtor, was postmistress at Glendale, Mrs. Potter was her assistant, says Mr. Nichols. Later Mrs. Potter invested in real estate here and was active in realty operations.

Sold Lot to Board.

One of the lots which now is the center of the Glendale Union high school plant was purchased at one time by Mrs. Potter for $300, he says. Later, after the high school board had purchased that and other lots for the high school, she bought another lot on the site of the annex, and when that was built, sold her lot to the board.

Illustrating the tremendous growth in values in Glendale during the past few years, Mr. Nichols states that a certain house in the east side of Glendale was built by his sister, and that the lot, house, and all improvements cost $1800. The place is now valued at $10,000.

After several years' experience in other cities in Southern California, Mrs. Potter decided that no other place equalled Glendale both as a place to live and for investment, it is stated. Although she is not planning to enter the real estate business, it is expected that she will invest the proceeds from the sale of her San Diego holdings in Glendale property.

Santa Fe Railroad Now Facing Tieup

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—A possible tie-up of the Santa Fe railroad system coming into southern California through the railroad key city of Needles, Cal., loomed today following the announcement of engineers, conductors, foremen and trainmen of the "big four" brotherhoods of the local Santa Fe lines that they would not move guarded trains. As a result, trains at Barstow, Needles and Seligman, Ariz., are said to be halted.

WORLD WAR HERO HERE IN INTEREST OF AUTO SIGNAL

Captain Harry Steinberg Wounded and Gassed During Conflict

Capt. Harry Steinberg, of Los Angeles, hero of the world war, was a visitor yesterday afternoon in Glendale.

While piloting an army plane in the service, it was set on fire by the enemy and he was obliged to jump before the blazing canvas. His back and right foot were broken. Before the armistice was signed, he received a bayonet wound near the left arm pit, a skull fracture, and bullet wounds in his right wrist and left leg. Otherwise, he was uninjured. Oh, yes, he also was gassed and has the word of physicians that his lungs are about half gone.

Capt. Steinberg had a large part in the organization of the association known as Disabled Veterans of the World War. He says that for 18 months he was its secretary. He participated in its successful drive for $65,000 to invest in a permanent home. He also helped to raise $20,000 for relief work among his buddies.

Enlisted in Canada.

Although he enlisted in Canada, and wears the ensignia of the Royal Flying Corps, Capt. Steinberg has now located in Southern California. One of his reasons for remaining here, outside of a health standpoint, is the fact that it is the automobile center of the world.

The Pacific Signal Company, whose office is located at 111 West Third street, Los Angeles, has been organized by Mr. Steinberg to market in an illuminated signalling device for automobiles. This is a small contrivance which is affixed to the left door of automobiles next to the driver. By a slight motion, the chauffeur is able to raise or lower an illuminated metal container which is intended to represent a hand. By observing this, the driver in the car behind can tell just which way the car, which has this attached, intends to turn.

The Motor Vehicle Department of California has given this company a written endorsement for this device. Mr. Steinberg calls attention to the fact that it is not intended to conflict at all with "flashers" for the rear of the car.

Many orders already have been received for this signal and Mr. Steinberg came to Glendale to seek someone with a little capital to join him in marketing the invention.

Parcel Post Shows Enormous Increase

WASHINGTON—The growth of the parcel post since its establishment in 1913 has been enormous. The estimated total number of parcels carried has increased, in round numbers, from 332,000,000 in 1913 to over 2,500,000,000 in 1921. With this increase in the number of parcels, there has also been a decided increase in the size and weight of parcels. It is now the greatest express facility in the world. One can well imagine how such a growth would affect the mail service, with its facilities never quite adequate and almost at a standstill during the period of the war. As a result of this condition, serious consideration must be given to providing additional buildings in the leading postal centers for the specific purpose of handling parcel post packages.

In order to prevent any delay to other classes of mail, such as letters, it has been suggested that parcel post be handled separately from other classes of mail in the congested cities and on certain congested transportation routes. This involves great expenditures of money for buildings and equipment, and with the great burden of debt on the government, which must be considered, the solution of this particular problem becomes doubly difficult. It is being approached, however, from every angle, and it is proposed, as rapidly as possible, to meet these conditions without too great a tax upon the public treasury.

PACKER COMPANY OPENS VAN NUYS SHOWROOM

Hundreds See Model Home of Studebaker Line and Enjoy Program

Opening one of the most beautiful automobile showrooms and sales service garages in San Fernando valley, the Packer Auto company, with headquarters here for Studebaker motorcars, was host to Van Nuys last night.

The whole town was invited to attend the program and exhibit of Studebakers—and surely it was a representative gathering with several people making their choice between the custom built Big Six, the Big Six coupe, the Special sedan, the Special touring, the Light Six touring and the Special roadster which were on display.

There is little about a garage which can be described, but, suffice to say, that the Packer Auto company have housed their Studebaker line in a most model building. That's what everybody said.

In the way of entertainment features, Mr. and Mrs. George Larkin of Glendale presented the Argentine fox trot and an eccentric fox trot for the approval of the five or six hundred present; William Bode played the saxophone; Herb Henning gave several piano selections and Miss Doris Packer was heartily encored for her reading, "Betty at the Baseball Game."

Punch was served throughout the evening and William Bode's musicians provided music for dancing until a late hour. S. C. Packer, D. H. Packer and L. J. Baker were on the reception committee with members of their valley sales force assisting.

Doubles Match Is Being Played Today

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 11.—It is do or die, sink or swim, survive or perish, or something like that for both France and Australia today when the doubles match in the semi-final round of the Davis cup series is played on the Longwood courts. The winner of this match is almost certain to go through to the final round against Spain in Philadelphia next week.

With honors a stand-off as the result of yesterday's singles matches, in which Gerald Patterson of Australia defeated Andre Gobert of France only to have Henri Cochet even the score by deposing Pat O'Hara Wood, the doubles have taken on the significance of a climax. If Gobert and Cochet cannot turn back the Australian pair today they will have just about concluded their effort, for the 20-year-old Gochet figures to beat Patterson in one of the singles tomorrow. Thus Australia would have the odd victory to its credit.

Likewise, if Patterson and O'Hara Wood fail today it is equally probable that they will fail tomorrow, for Gobert, even with his lack of stamina, is a better singles player than O'Hara Wood, whom he is scheduled to meet on the final day.

The odds are all in favor of Australia, even though Anderson remains steadfast and O'Hara Wood is unable to work off a touch of neuritis in his right shoulder.

BOND ISSUE FOR SCHOOL SITE AND EASTSIDE PLANT

Vigorous Protest Over Two Propositions Being Tied Together at Meeting

ing program of Los Angeles would affect prices for material in the Glendale high school plant.

"Last time we were here we were kept rather late and we didn't get very far," remarked W. D. Root of 110 Olive street. "I think it would be wise to have a rule limiting each speaker to ten minutes."

Alex Mitchell of 1801 Kenneth road was on his feet at once and many thought that he intended to object.

"I wish to amend that motion," he declared. "I am in favor of limiting the time to five minutes."

The motion which was "the bone of contention" during the meeting was introduced by H. V. Henry of 353 Pioneer drive.

Difference of Opinion

Whether the question should be placed on the ballots in one or two parts occupied the larger part of the discussion during the meeting. It was contended by ninety-three that the two should be coupled together while sixty-seven insisted that the voters should be given the privilege of approving the expenditure of additional money on the east side site and the purchase of a northwest site as entirely separate and distinct propositions.

A motion to divide the two was made by Rudolph Streit of 506 West California avenue. He reminded those present that it had been thought before the previous bond election that $600,000 would be sufficient to complete the new high school plant and that he had not received sufficient information to cause him to change his mind.

"If a high school in the northwest becomes necessary in a few years," he remarked, "there will not be money enough to build it."

The second to the amendment was made by John R. Grey of 667 West Doran street, who asserted his belief that the two measures should not be tied up in an omnibus bill. He commented on the fact that the sites under consideration are listed at different prices and that it would be impossible to tell beforehand how much money would be left for the completion of the new school plant.

"I believe it ought to be the privilege of everyone to vote for one proposition and vote down the other," declared Emil T. Seidenglanz of 426 West Burchett street.

Predicts Big Increase

The increase in the bonding capacity of the high school district to $550,000 in less than a year was pointed out by Richardson D. White.

"I think the same thing is going to happen next year and the year afterwards," he declared enthusiastically. "In that case, we will have a million dollars in a few years for high school purposes."

Mr. Streit inquired where the expenditure of the district's funds would cease if the demands of the northwest side on the treasury equaled the demands of the east side and both required the construction of $850,000 plants.

Doubt of the legality of combining the two propositions in one measure was expressed several times by Mr. Grey.

"If I remember rightly," he remarked, "we lost an excellent chance to have a civic center here some time ago because that matter was coupled up with another matter. Providing school facilities is a very serious matter."

An inquiry was made first by O. M. Newby of 803 North Pacific avenue and then by the chairman if there was not a lawyer present who could interpret the law in this respect.

"I would suggest that you leave attorneys out of this or there will be no surplus," demanded Mr. Mitchell. This remark caused a laugh and helped to keep the equilibrium of good humor which was noticeable during the meeting.

"I was a lawyer once—but I got over it!" exclaimed Mr. White, proceeding to state his opinion that it would not be unlawful to combine the two propositions together.

W. B. Root of 110 Olive street said that it was a case of "you kill my dog and I'll kill your cat" and that by tying the two propositions up together the residents of the West Side could be sure of the East Side vote for a new high school site and the residents of the East Side could be sure of additional funds for the completion of the new plant.

Favors Separation

A. T. Cowan, publisher of The Glendale Evening News, took the floor in favor of dividing the two propositions.

"I favored and voted for the $85,000 to purchase land in the east side of the city," he declared. "I also voted for $600,000 for the new buildings that are proposed to be erected on that ground. I have not yet made up my mind at this time that it is necessary at this time to add any additional bond issue to the east side."

Although he stated that he was much interested in seeing the work of the high schools go forward as efficiently as possible, Mr. Cowan said that he was opposed to the expenditure of more than $600,000 on the new site. He agreed that the northwest side seems entitled to a site, but admitted that he would feel compelled to vote against it at the present time if the two measures were combined.

"I am just one among many," asserted Mr. Cowan, "and yet I believe there are many in Glendale who feel just like I do."

If the architect's estimate is $600,000 to how much will the bids amount to? This question was raised by Mr. Cowan who called attention to the fact that bids are usually higher than estimated. He inquired what would happen if the bids should exceed the funds available and reminded those present that a third bond election would be necessary to cover the deficit.

Plea for Democracy

H. V. Henry pointed out the fact that there are children in Glendale to be educated and that it has been proven that $600,000 is not enough to take care of their needs in the proposed institution. To open a new high school plant and have it overcrowded the first year he characterized as ridiculous. He declared that no city under 60,000 population has found it efficient to operate two high schools.

"The matter of $350,000 isn't much among friends," remarked Mr. Sherer drolly. "I don't think it is fair to the people to combine those propositions on one ballot and make it necessary for the people of this district, who have to pay the bills, that they reject or approve them both at the same time. Give the people a chance to express themselves. That is democracy."

Mr. Newby also spoke in favor of dividing the measure because he said that he had not yet come to the realization of the necessity of spending $260,000 more for the east side high school. He characterized the voters of Glendale as being above the average in intelligence and stated his opinion that they would show no hesitation in providing this sum if they could be shown its necessity.

That placing the two measure together is paramount to denying the voters of the emomunity the right of choice and therefore denying them the franchise, was the opinion expressed most forcibly by Mr. Seidenglanz. He asserted that it was the privilege of the voters of Glendale to settle the school question and denied the authority of the mass meeting to usurp this power and to deprive them of this right.

"I personally deplore any dissention growing out of this question," remarked Mr. Grey. "I do not believe that there is a person here who does not realize that greater facilities must be provided for the education of the children of Glendale."

Offers Substitute

A substitute motion for the amendment was proposed by him. It was that a bond issue for $500,000 should be authorized, part of the money to be used for the purchase of a site on the west side and the balance for the construction of the first unit of a high school upon it.

A suggestion was made by Mr. Newby that this motion was out of order but Chairman Russell ruled that it was in order if defined as a substitute motion. However, the motion was lost for want of a second. It was reintroduced by Mr. Grey a few minutes later.

"I would like to ask how it would be possible to build a high school unit for $350,000?" inquired Mr. Henry. He reminded those present that a full corps of teachers would be necessary for a second high school.

Mr. Grey retorted that he believes the people of the west side had as much right to ask for additional funds to complete a plant there as the people of the east side had to ask for more money to complete a plant in their section of the city. He said that this assumption seemed logical anyhow.

Upon a vote, however, Mr. Grey's motion was lost.

Action Is Questioned

W. Q. Widdows of 1246 Winchester avenue introduced an amendment to the original motion that its wording be changed so that it would read that only as much money as necessary should be spent for the east side plant. He said this would relieve the school board of the obligation of spending the full amount of the bond issue in case it should not be necessary.

It was the cause of some excitement because the audience seemed to be divided as to whether or not it had been voted upon and Vice Chairman Sherer was appealed to for a decision. He referred the matter to a standing vote. A majority voted that the motion had been approved already.

Exclamations of "question!" "question!" were heard from various parts of the auditorium in regard to the original motion and it was put to a vote at once. The only dissenting vote came from Alex Mitchell, who was seen wearing a broad smile at the time, so his friends realized that he was exercising the sovereign American right to be contrary.

The meeting adjourned about 10:30 o'clock after some discussion of the five high school sites in the northwest section of the city. A motion was introduced by C. B. Guthrie of 314 Patterson avenue that the arguments in favor of each site should be presented in writing by its sponsor.

Dinner and Reunion Enjoyed by Family

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Camargo and son, George Morrison, of 327 East Maple avenue, were guests Wednesday night at a pleasant family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alpha Boggess, of Lincoln Heights, Los Angeles. The affair was also a reunion of close relatives. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Faulkner and daughter, Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Redd and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Camargo and son, George Harrison, Mrs. Jesse Cramer, Mrs. E. C. Loring, Mr. and Mrs. Boggess and son, Lilly.

Three of these guests were sisters of Mrs. Camargo. Immediate members of their family not present were the mother, Mrs. Sarah Redd, and their brother, Clyde Redd, and wife, all of whom are visiting relatives at Portland and other points in Oregon.

RALPH ALLAN TOPS VARIED PROGRAM AT T. D. & L.

Special Vaudeville Bill for Patrons; Lon Chaney In Gripping Film

Again Ralph Allan stages "special" vaudeville for the entertainment of T. D. & L. patrons. This time it is the comedy drama sketch taken from the famous "Twin Beds" play, entitled "Now You Musn't Suspect." This act has been prepared for big time vaudeville especially by Miss Martha Oatman, the distinguished actress. The company of players numbers four. Mr. Allan has gone to great preparations to stage this act and believes it will meet the approval of his many patrons.

"Singing Tramp" Appears

In addition there will be James Gordon, the rich baritone voiced "singing tramp," who came into the limelight in Glendale when he was found singing in the streets. Then, of course, there is still "more" show.

The feature attraction in motion pictures is that famous character actor, Lon Chaney, in one of his best offerings, "The Trap." The plot is deep in dramatic action and depth of feeling.

The comedy, "Breaking Into Jail," is another hilarious ramble into the nonsensical. It's a big show at regular T. D. & L. prices.

War Mothers Enjoy Day at S. W. Museum

The county officers of the organization of Mothers of the World War were hostesses yesterday at a pleasant affair given at the Southwest Museum at Highland Park. Tea was served in the club room, by the presiding hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Frances K. Headlee, secretary of education of the institution and her assistant. A silver offering was taken.

The afternoon hours were spent very pleasantly in a tour of the museum, and it was stated a drive is now on to increase the membership of the institution by 2000 to raise a deficit that has been underwritten by Dr. Norman Bridge, one of the original founders of the museum.

Among the Glendale people present were Mrs. F. A. Cowlin, a county officer; Mrs. P. A. Wells, local officer; Mesdames L. T. Rowley, Butterly, Rose and Nichols, all members of the local organization, and L. T. Rowley.

JOHN SHAY TELLS ABOUT GLENDALE 30 YEARS AGO

Unbroken Land Where City Now Stands; Social Life; Cottage As Relic

store. It was large, roomy and well furnished and had a large following.

The Sunday evening Christian Endeavor meetings, supported by the church orchestra, were the events of the week. Together with a number of nice little homes, the above completed former Glendale. Last but not least, the quaint, little, old-fashioned cottage in which the Ayers family lived, still stands—unchanged—in the same spot, next door south of the store on Glendale avenue. The writer feels that it would be a fitting tribute to the memory of one of the foremost founders of the city of Glendale to preserve this little cottage as a relic.

Lots of Social Life

Social life was not lacking in those days; something was doing every night in the week. Literary meetings, moonlight croquet parties and social gatherings of every kind. An amateur dramatic club pulled off its regular productions and the proceeds from the shows were turned over to the different churches. Your humble servant took an active part in these and earned the title of "Colonel" thereby, and was always hailed by that title by the townspeople.

Our joy rides in those days were taken in the farm wagon which was filled with straw. "Pile in, everybody, let's go!" Four peppy mustangs served as motive power and we all felt that we could ride as fast as they wanted to go. The girls always brought plenty of eats, cooked and prepared by their own hands. No thrills from our present day joy-ride with its automobile and cafe, can equal those of the old-time straw ride.

Water Troubles

With all due respect to all of the members of the Verdugo family and their traditions, the writer here, as a matter of history, will relate some of the incidents connected with the above case. Lots were not being offered for sale in those days, acres only were worth while then. All the prominent people owned an acre or more tract.

A water company formed by the land owners purchased the water flowing right in the Verdugo canyon. A cement reservoir was constructed several blocks north of the store and into this the small running stream from the canyon flowed. This, in turn, was distributed in pipes to the different land owners and was controlled by a superintendent, whose name I do not now recall but remember him as a hard-working and yet most genial little fellow.

A deputy sheriff, a friend of mine, came to me one evening and said: "Colonel, do you want a job on which you will stand a good chance to get killed?" In reply, I assured my friend that I had been anxious for some time to find employment where I could save enough from my earnings to insure my funeral expenses, and added:

"If you can insure me this I am ready to sign up."

The following morning we went to Los Angeles, and I was taken before the sheriff and was sworn in as deputy sheriff of the county of Los Angeles. My friend and I were then assigned to duty day and night, with our headquarters on the bank of a reservoir in the Verdugo canyon.

Attack at Daylight

I then learned that this water right had been sold to the Glendale & Verdugo Water company, by Mr. Verdugo, but with some misunderstanding on Verdugo's part, he had later rented some land to Chinese gardeners. The Chinamen had constructed a dam across the waterway and were using the water, and when the employes of the water company went in to interfere they were run out by the Chinamen and Mexicans.

Judge Ross had armed us with the legal protest of the court against any attempt to stop the flowing water from its regular course.

After several days and nights waterfall service on our part, we found ourselves surrounded one morning just at daylight by fifteen angry looking characters who with whoops and yells, began filling in the opening we had cut through the dam. Our protest from the court was read to the leader. We were ordered by the sheriff at the time of our appointment, to avoid any violence. Our duty was to be witness to the unlawful act of preventing the flow of water in its natural course, and against the protest of the court and its affairs.

On having accomplished the above requirements we reported to our superiors. Judge Ross then issued a citation to Mr. Verdugo, and his men, to appear in court and show cause for his action. At the hearing of this case, Mr. Verdugo informed the court, through his interpreter, that his attorney had instructed him to do as he did. With a good reputation as a law-abiding man, and not being able to speak the English language, prosecution was set aside and no further trouble was afterwards experienced.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 11.—Eight men, four of them soldiers, were injured by flaming embers and flying debris in a fire which threatened the Hotel Grant early today.

Miss Hazel Wilson Honored at Shower

Miss Madeline Love of 220 West Elk avenue and Miss Murray Longley were joint hostesses at a pretty shower last night given at the home of the former, in honor of Miss Hazel Wilson whose engagement to Herbert Besant was announced recently. A pink and white color scheme was carried out in decorations. Place cards for the game of hearts, bore little pictures of brides.

Miss Wilson was presented gifts in a most novel manner. She was first blindfolded, and told that in her walk through life she was sure to meet many obstacles, but as long as she was led by love she could feel sure that they would be overcome. She stepped along stumbling over these obstacles, picking them up, and when the blindfold was removed found herself the recipient of many beautiful presents. Delicious refreshments were served. Those present were Miss Hazel Wilson, Miss Edna Farner, Miss Marian Jones, Miss Agnes Tupper, Miss Esther Besant, Miss Edith Schuyler, Miss Bessie Carney, Miss Mary Rich, Miss Murray Longley, Miss Madeline Love, Mrs. A. W. Wilson, Mrs. Margaret Longley and Mrs. T. G. Love.

Glendale Parrot Sings Grand Opera

An interesting newcomer in Glendale is a remarkable parrot that has been trained to sing grand opera. This very intelligent bird was first owned by a French singer, and her favorite song is the Marsellaise, which she sings every morning, in perfect French. Polly was brought to Glendale by Mrs. Charles Johnson, formerly a teacher of dramatic art, in New York city, by whom she was trained in her vocal performances.

The bird has been the property of Mrs. Johnson for six years and is now seven years old. "Farewell to Thee" is one of her favorites and is sung with clear enunciation and good expression. All through the day she breaks out at the most unexpected moments with wonderful trills and high notes from strains of well known operas. She is also quite an accomplished linguist. Polly is now the property of Mrs. Stella Goodman of 645 North Central avenue.

Cholera Follows In Wake of Typhoon

SHANGHAI, Aug. 11.—Cholera is adding horror in the wake of the typhoon which destroyed Swatow with a loss of anywhere from 20,000 to 50,000 lives.

United States Consul General Cunningham today received a cabled appeal from the United States consul at Swatow for supplies to fight the cholera epidemic, which he said was now sweeping the city, as a result of the pollution of the water by dead bodies of animals and human beings.

valuation of property in the city limits has almost doubled in the past year. He mentioned the figure of $22,000,000.

C. F. Stuart, of 638 East Broadway, urged all present to attend the dedication on August 16 of the new municipal park. He said that plans were being made for everyone to have a thoroughly good time.

C. E. Stanley of 108 North Everett street, chairman of the post-office committee, reported progress toward the establishment of a branch postoffice on the northwest corner of Howard street and Broadway across the street from the city hall.

A letter from Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson was read. It was worded as follows:

"Referring to the establishment of a branch postoffice for the east side may I ask that your proposition be expedited in order that I may take the matter up with the department at what I consider an opportune time.

"I call your attention to the fact that my request from the department to submit a report bears date of July 1, 1922."

A pessimistic note was sounded by C. W. Ingledue, president of the association, in regard to the $25,000 bonus to be paid the Glendale & Montrose Railway for the establishment of electric service on Glendale avenue.

"It seems that the big interests on both sides of us are putting it up to Glendale folk entirely to put this over," he remarked. "I don't know whether we can do it or not."

John L. Lampert of 622 East Broadway, chairman of the transportation committee, admitted that progress had been slow the past week. He attributed the cause to the fact that so many people now are away on vacations.

Herman Nelson of the Glendale Avenue Branch of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank who is receiving the funds en sotto voce admitted that only $7,000 or $8,000 has been deposited so far.

George A. Whitney, representative of the W. Ross Campbell Company of Los Angeles, reported that the delay in getting work started on the hotel was due to the necessity, under the state law, of getting the title cleared up to the satisfaction of the state corporation commissioner before any work is done on the premises. He said that as soon as this had been done, construction will commence without further delay.
